Ontario Holdup

Two Suspects Picked Up; Hostage Safe

HUNTSVILLE, Ont. (UPI) — Ontario provincial police Thursday were holding two Connecticut men in connection with the abduction of a 21-year-old female bank teller and a daylight robbery in the Ottawa Valley town of Cobden.

They arrested Richard Bigelow and Douglas Olden, both from Connecticut, at the west end of Algonquin Park in the Muskoka area of the province.

$2,000,000 In Gems Monaco Loss

MONTE CARLO (UPI) — Five masked bandits firing machine guns and pistols raided a jewelry store near the Monte Carlo Casino Thursday and fled with jewels valued at about $2,000,000.

The robbers shot a policeman in the leg as they ran to escape in a pickup truck. Jewels worth about $400,000 were recovered in the vehicle when it was found abandoned on a side street later.

13 Nations Sanctions Likely For Cuba

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American foreign ministers conference appeared ready Thursday to slap diplomatic and trade sanctions on Cuba.

After intensive closed-door negotiations on the wording of a proposed resolution calling for sanctions, at least 13 countries, the required two-thirds majority of the 19 voting countries, were reported ready to vote for the Venezuelan requested sanctions.

SANCTIONS OPPOSED
Mexico and Chile oppose the sanctions and the positions of Uruguay and Bolivia were uncertain. These countries still have diplomatic relations with Cuba.

The stand of Argentina, one of the largest of Latin American countries, also was uncertain. But it is believed Argentina will support the majority.

NOT EFFECTIVE
Argentina told the conference Thursday morning the proposed sanctions against Cuba "are not and will not be effective."

At the afternoon session the United States introduced three resolutions aimed at tightening the isolation of Cuba.

MUTUAL SURVEILLANCE
One resolution called for all members of the Organization of American States to:

"Co-operate in the establishment of systems of air, sea and land surveillance in the waters off their coasts and along their land boundaries in order to detect clandestine movements of."

Hit-Run Car Kills Boy

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — David John Moore, 2½, was killed Thursday when struck by a car whose driver failed to stop.

The tot's mother, Mrs. John Moore, found her son lying on the road where he had been playing with friends in the Austin subdivision just north of this north central city.

RCMP began a door-to-door canvass for witnesses to the mishap in an effort to get a description of the car involved.

'Frugal Years' Rewarded

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Mrs. Ednah Capron Thursday won a $16,000,000 property settlement, believed one of the largest divorce settlements ever, and a divorce decree from rancher George Capron, her husband of 55 years.

Property involved is mostly in valuable land near Laguna Beach and an $85,000 Newport Beach home. Mrs. Capron charged her husband made her live frugally for 55 years.

Ordeal on Frigid B.C. River

TWO HUDDLE WEEK ON PLANE FLOATS

PRINCE RUPERT (CP) — Robert Gilroy and Max Portz faced certain death if they struck out in the glacier-fed waters of the Iskut River, so they huddled, drenched and bitterly cold, for eight days on the floats of their overturned Beaver aircraft.

In all that time they didn't have anything to eat and saw rescue aircraft fly past.

They told about it Thursday following their rescue. Gilroy spoke by telephone from Terrace, 95 miles inland from this north coast city and 200 miles south of the spot where their plane hit the river July 14.

TRIED FOR LANDING

The two prospectors were returning to their campsite at the junction of the Iskut and Ingham Rivers. They tried for a landing close to the site, trying to avoid the risk of taxing around snags.

"We hit a mud bank," Gilroy said.

FLOATED DOWNSTREAM

The plane floated downstream stopped upside down on a sand bar. Gilroy, 39, and Portz, 48, clambered onto the floats and there they remained through almost continuous rain for eight days.

WATER FRIGID

The Iskut, which flows through the Alaska Panhandle about 65 miles northwest of Stewart, was about three-quarters of a mile wide, its water close to 30 degrees.

"It would have meant death in two minutes if we had tried to strike out for shore," he said. "We counted as many as 14 planes flying over. That was the worst part of it."

CAMP DESERTED

A search was sparked Tuesday after Terrace pilot Doug Chappel flew supplies into their camp, found it deserted and noted the last entry in their diary was July 14.

They were spotted Wednesday, picked up and flown to Terrace by way of a mining camp and Stewart.

HAD GOOD SLEEP

"We were given lots of fruit juice and we both slept a long time," said Gilroy.

Neither lost much weight but Portz, a native of Rosland, caught a regular airlines flight Thursday for Vancouver for treatment of exposure. Gilroy, who is from Vancouver, said he will head north again as soon as he can.

LBJ, Barry Meet Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson will meet this afternoon with Senator Barry Goldwater, Republican presidential nominee, to discuss means of keeping the civil rights issue out of the 1964 presidential campaign.

Riots Go On

Wagner 'Too Late'

NEW YORK (AP) — White hecklers shouted epithets and threw eggs and garbage at a group of white and Negro pickets outside New York City's police headquarters Thursday night.

But no new outbreaks of violence were reported in Harlem or the Bedford-Stuyvesant section of Brooklyn as darkness fell on the city, wracked on the five previous nights by wild racial violence.

Negro leaders Thursday rejected Mayor Robert F. Wagner's blueprint for peace, and one condemned the police for "reckless and panicky violence" in suppressing the riots which have left one dead, 140 hurt, 478 arrested and 673 properties damaged.

TARGETS NOT HIT

The 200 pickets at Manhattan's police headquarters, representing the Congress of Racial Equality, were protected from 300 white hecklers by police barriers.

The police, including six officers, were injured.

Province to Get Its Bank 'One Way or Another'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Premier Bennett said Thursday night he is not trying to threaten Canada's Senate, but British Columbia is going to have a bank one way or another.

Returning from Ottawa where he testified before the Senate Banking Committee on application for a charter for a bank of British Columbia the premier told interviewers he is still confident that the bank will get a federal charter, despite the committee's action in postponing a decision.

GO IT ALONE

He said he based his confidence partly on a series of talks he had with MPs of various parties just before he left Ottawa.

But, the premier said, if for some reason the Senate does not approve the charter, B.C. will go into the finance business one way or another. One way might be through establishment of treasury branches, such as those in Alberta. Another would be through trust companies.

This, he conceded, "would be second best and it will not be the complete answer to making B.C. a major financial centre of Canada. But it is a partial answer."

'CAN'T SIT BY'

"We cannot sit idly by and let the people of our province continue to be held back."

The premier stressed that he was well-treated by the Senate committee.

"I am not finding fault with the Senate," he said.

Laurentide Boss 'Surprised'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Peter Paul Saunders, president of Laurentide Finance Company, expressed surprise Thursday at a statement attributed to Premier Bennett that B.C. would go ahead with the Bank of British Columbia with or without parliamentary approval.

"I think he made a very good submission to Ottawa, but these things take time," he said.

"We've been there for several months—he only got there yesterday."

Card Belongs to Young Communist League Heart Belongs to Baptists

MOSCOW (UPI) — The religious yearnings of a 16-year-old girl in this atheistic nation drew special attention Thursday in a newspaper article entitled "The one who has gone astray."

Komsomolskaya Pravda, the newspaper of the Young Communist League, published a letter from Nina K., of the Ural city of Shelyabinsk, and added editorially that it was sure she was not lost to Communism.

"The fact is I don't believe in people," Nina K. wrote. "I am a Young Communist League member and I am 16... I am a normal girl but at the same time I'm unusual. I'm a member of a sect."

"Yes, I'm a Baptist! Strange, isn't it?"
Nina went on, "Frankly, I don't consider myself a member of the Young Communist League. I have a Komsomol card... but my soul belongs to God."

"I don't want far away towns and construction sites... for what do I need the new lands?" (These are the accepted goals of good Young Communist Leaguers.)

"Father was a drunkard and mother was sick and all my brothers and sisters were crying all the time. My schoolmates looked on me with contempt and pity," Nina K. wrote.

"But here at church people met me with warmth and care. They wore black, members of this sect... but they have and now I have too a great and pure belief—the belief in God. He will protect us."

"Let Komsomol members members pass me without greeting. Let them look upon me with contempt. Let them say behind my back the word they regard as an insult—Baptist."

"Let them. I don't need them... now I am praying... God is almighty," Nina said. "My brothers and sisters in God treat me very well. I believe them. And I believe God. Before, I thought people invented God to oppress each other and now I think you shouldn't invent God because he already exists."

"The only thing I don't know is what to do with my Komsomol card..."

In an editor's note the Communist newspaper said, "the very fact she wrote a letter to our newspaper shows this 16-year-old girl deeply feels the uncertainty of her position."

"The question of where she belongs is not yet decided and we are sure life itself will persuade her that religious dogmas are groundless..."

Faint Hope Remains Posties Won't Strike

Gunfire Flares Along Border

TEL AVIV, Jerusalem (Reuters) — A new flare-up on the Syria-Israel border was reported Thursday night. An Israeli army spokesman said Syrian fortified positions opened automatic fire on the Israeli frontier village of Almagor, near the point where the Jordan River flows in to the Sea of Galilee, and Israeli forces returned the fire.

LONDON (Reuters)—There was a glimmer of hope Thursday night that a country-wide strike by Britain's 123,000 postmen might be averted despite failure in last-minute attempts by the government to negotiate an agreement.

Further talks were scheduled today as the country's deliverers and sorters prepared to walk off their jobs at midnight Saturday night unless the government satisfies their wage demands.

Racial War

Toll Mounting In Singapore

SINGAPORE (AP)—The death toll in Singapore's Chinese-Malay racial riots rose to 19 Thursday and reports spread that mobs were still on the prowl in some areas.

The toll in wounded was 300 or more in the strife that first erupted Tuesday night during a Moslem Malay procession in honor of the prophet Mohammed.

Singapore state Premier Lee Kuan Yew blamed the battling on Malay extremists. He said here that the savage fighting between the minority Malays and the Chinese could signal the start of serious trouble for the multi-racial Malaysian Federation.

TROOPS IN

About 7,000 steel-helmeted police and combat-garbed troops were posted on the island state to prevent fresh outbreaks of racial rioting.

Malays in Singapore were advised to pray at home on Friday, mosque day for Moslems, because of the emergency.

Police broke up two ugly mobs Thursday night and arrested 100 curfew breakers, but the situation appeared greatly improved.

There was no immediate word on the circumstances of the 19th death. The toll had been 18 on Thursday night.

The country's prime minister, Tunku Abdul Rahman, is in Washington. He plans to go to Ottawa Monday for three days. A communique issued in the U.S. capital Thursday night reaffirmed United States support for a free and independent Malaysia.

AID APPROVED

It said President Johnson had agreed to provide military training in the United States for Malaysian personnel and to consider promptly and sympathetically credit sales, under existing arrangements, of appropriate military equipment for the defence of Malaysia.

Border Guard Reaches Safety

EISENSTADT, Austria (Reuters)—A 21-year-old Hungarian border guard in full uniform escaped into Austria near Guesing, 45 miles south of here, police reported Thursday.

Victim Aids Law

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. — Two "excellent" color photographs snapped by the victim in her hotel room led to the arrest of a sailor accused of strangling her, police say.

Police found a camera belonging to Mrs. Phyllis Minich, 42, of Kingsport, Tenn., in a trash can.

Development of the film enabled police to identify navy airman Dale John Celenza, 21, of Philadelphia, who has been charged with homicide.

The woman's nude body was found Saturday in the motel room.

Gregg

BRIDGETOWN, Barbados — Milton Gregg, 72-year-old former Canadian Liberal cabinet minister, was married here Wednesday to Mrs. Erica Delehmann of Sussex, N.B., widow of Danish-born potter and artist Kjeld Delehmann.

CHICAGO — The wearer of a bottomless bathing suit has won acquittal in circuit court. Judge Gordon B. Nash dismissed charges against Peter Bybrower, who was arrested for allowing his 22-month-old son to romp in the altogether on a South Side beach. "How ridiculous can we get?" the judge asked.

LONDON — London reporters, interested in United States politics, telephoned candidate Goldwater about his policies. Those he outlined were parallel to those of British Labor Party leader Harold Wilson. Leonard Goldwater, 37, is a clothing manufacturer from Wigan and Labor candidate in the forthcoming general election.

CANNES, France — Marlene Dietrich and Zsa Zsa Gabor tangled verbally at the Cannes Casino because Miss Gabor's personal photographer took pictures of Miss Dietrich. Miss Dietrich is singing at the Casino in a form-fitting gown with nearly transparent top. Her contract specifies no photographs during the show.

NEW YORK — Arthur Murray is stepping out of the dance studio business he started in the 1930s. He said that two franchisees have purchased control of the cross-country chain for about $1,000,000.

LONDON — Alexander Victor Paulet Montagu, 10th Earl of Sandwich, has announced he is giving up his title. He will be known as Victor Montagu. Lord Sandwich, 58, is reported anxious to return to the House of Commons.

MARTINEZ, Calif. — Mrs. Magdalena Bensoter was granted a divorce from her 80-year-old husband, Virgil, after she testified he sometimes took "girl friends to our senior citizens club."

HOLLYWOOD — Kitty, of Gunsmoke, is getting married. Announcement has been made Wednesday that actress Annad Blake will wed Arizona cattleman Jason Day Aug. 15.

NEW YORK — Dr. Harvey N. Lothringer has been sentenced to a prison term of two to eight years for the 1962 abortion death and dismemberment of a Westchester girl, Barbara Lofruento, 19.

WALLA WALLA, Wash. — A human skeleton believed to be 8,000 years old will be unearthed from a site near the confluence of the Palouse and Snake Rivers today, says a Washington State University archaeologist, Dr. Richard Daugherty.

Timber-Short Lands Scouring World For New Supplies

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — A massive increase in demand for timber is forcing European countries who once had large export surpluses to scour the world in search of new sources of supply.

A joint report published here by the United Nations economic commission for Europe and the Food and Agricultural Organization said the sharp acceleration in demand for wood could be of great benefit to underdeveloped countries, many of which have huge, untapped forests.

PULP, PAPER — A big increase in the use of wood for pulp and paper is one of the main factors in what the report calls "a quiet revolution" in the pattern of timber use in Europe.

By 1960 one-quarter of all wood used went into pulp and paper whereas at the end of the Second World War less than one-fifth of all timber was used for this purpose.

Wagner Too Late

On horses, kept the hecklers so far back that none of the eggs and refuse hurled by the hecklers reached the targets.

The pickets included several Protestant clergymen.

Earlier, the city director of CORE, Roy Innis, said his organization would remain non-violent "no matter what."

CORE had asked the police for protection for the pickets after a wild demonstration Wednesday night, when some 500 white teen-agers showered demonstrators with missiles and taunts.

A 22-year-old religion student, Maris Cakars, fisted on the city hall steps hoping for "peace through tranquility."

"CALM, REASON"

A committee of 7,500 clergymen of all faiths called for sermons Sunday on "calm, reason and understanding."

Mayor Wagner's call for peace was termed too little, too late by Negro leaders. A few hours after the mayor's plea Wednesday night, some of the worst violence and looting broke out in Brooklyn.

During that violence, 600 young Negroes screaming "kill or be killed" raced through the Bedford-Stuyvesant section, smashing 200 store windows and looting the premises.

Police placed the five-day toll at: one man dead by gunfire; 140 persons, including 48 policemen, injured; 478 persons arrested, and 673 properties damaged.

Negro leaders said Wagner's peace appeal on radio and television Wednesday night was inadequate.

DEMANDS NOT MET

They said the mayor did not meet the Negroes' two chief demands:

1. Establishment of an impartial non-police board to review complaints of police brutality.

2. Suspension at the least of police Lieut. Thomas R. Gilligan, whose fatal shooting of a 15-year-old Negro boy—James Powell—last week sparked protests that mushroomed into the rioting.

A grand jury is investigating the shooting.

Opponents of a review board contend it would dilute police commissioner Michael J. Murphy's authority and inhibit police from their responsibilities in carrying out the law.

Cuba Facing Sanctions

persons or any suspected movement of arms, munitions or implements of war from Cuba to any other part of the hemisphere."

A second U.S. resolution called for recognition of subversive action as an aggression under the terms of the inter-

American treaty of reciprocal assistance.

The third resolution called on the free world nations to cooperate in hemispheric efforts to suspend trade with and economic assistance to Cuba.

None of the U.S. resolutions mentioned sanctions. But the United States' earlier declared its support of the Venezuelan position calling for sanctions.

The American ministers are in conference to consider action against Cuba because of its efforts to overthrow the government of Venezuela.

Brazil and Argentina have been working to find a formula for condemnation of Cuba which will attract the widest possible support and avoid a serious split in the ranks of the OAS.

Colombia, Panama and Costa Rica, reflecting the Venezuelan position, have called for a mandatory break of diplomatic and trade relations.

Vancouver Legion Branch Raided Again for Bingo

VANCOUVER (CPI) — Gambling squad detectives and uniform officers late Thursday swooped down on the Mount Pleasant branch of the Royal Canadian Legion in the second bingo raid on the premises in seven months.

Later charges of keeping a common gaming house were laid against the legion branch, secretary-manager Elmer MacDonald and the Mount Pleasant Memorial Community Co-Operative Association.

Some 500 men and women players were ordered by the police under Insp. J. S. Robertson to lay down their cards and leave the building. Police took their names and addresses as they filed out and got information about how much they had spent on bingo.

The raid came as gaming charges laid following a previous raid last December are still being argued in the courts.

Your Good Health

Be a Good Hospital Visitor Don't Dwell on Friend's Ills

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD
A reader has sent me a leaflet called How To Be a Good Visitor, meaning how to be a good hospital visitor, printed by the General Board of Education of the Methodist Church.

It consists of four clever cartoons, each with a paragraph of text, as follows:

DON'T PLAY DOCTOR. If your Aunt Aspidistra expired of something that sounds a lot like what's ailing the patient, save the diagnosis for the bridge club. Auntie may have died of old age. If the patient wants to tell you about his ailment, let him, but don't dwell on disease.

CANDY AIN'T ALWAYS DANDY. Gifts of food should have special hospital approval. Flowers are fine, but not in card lot; a single odorless plant is better. Books and magazines are handy perennials. Women welcome colognes and men like such chin-up gifts as shaving lotion.

TOBACCO MAY BE TABOO.

Don't smoke unless it's all right with the hospital, with the patient you're visiting, and other patients close by. Even regular smokers may hate the smell of tobacco smoke when ill. Never smoke in the corridors. Alcohol is always out of order.

CURTAIN CALL. Exit on a helpful, hopeful note. Don't be a Gloomy Gus. Ask if there's a service you can render (mailing a letter, watering a lawn, making a phone call) or whether there's something you can bring back (a bathrobe, book, bed-jacket) the next time you visit. It's first-class advice, and anything but stuffy.

Dear Dr. Molner: What about the probability of a woman bearing a deformed child if she has German measles (rubella) in the early months of pregnancy?—MRS. A.P.V.

If you have German measles in the first three, or perhaps even four, months of pregnancy, there is thoroughly established evidence that the risk of bearing a deformed baby is much greater than otherwise.

This does not mean that all women having German measles early in pregnancy will bear deformed babies. Nor does it mean that all those who DON'T have rubella at this time will necessarily have perfect babies.

Dear Dr. Molner: My two small children are near-sighted and must wear glasses. Can the problem be corrected by an operation? I am heartick about this.—MRS. G.C.

Stop being heartick. Wearing glasses may be a nuisance, but I would prefer for my children to have that trouble than a few hundred other things that some youngsters must put up with.

If you keep on feeling this way, you will transmit the idea to your children and make them resistant to the glasses. They'll be better off just taking the situation for granted and not feeling dramatically sorry for themselves.

FBI Charges Three For Beating Negro

GREENWOOD, Miss. (UPI) — FBI agents made the first arrests under the new civil rights law Thursday when they jailed three local white men for allegedly beating a Negro because he entered a Greenwood theatre.

The three were identified as Willie Amos Belk, 47; his son, Jimmy Allen Belk, 19, and Sam Allen Shaffer, Jr., 40, all of Greenwood and all employees of a plumbing company operated by the elder Belk.

Attorney-General Robert Kennedy and FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover announced the arrests from Washington.

AT VOTE REGISTRATION

They identified the Negro who was beaten as Silas McGhee, 21.

The alleged incident took place July 16, the same day Greenwood police jailed 111 integrationists for staging voter-registration demonstrations outside the courthouse.

Loaded Rifle Seized

NEW YORK (UPI) — Police raided a black nationalist headquarters in the heart of Harlem early Thursday and confiscated a loaded rifle and a cache of ammunition.

The raiding party also found two printing presses and a supply of posters bearing the picture of militant black nationalist Malcolm X, a defector from the Black Muslim movement.

No arrests were made. The raiding party was acting on a tip supplied by a New York newspaper.

De Gaulle Opposes 'Two-Camp' System

PARIS (Reuters) — President Charles de Gaulle hit out at U.S. involvement in Southeast Asia, Europe and in the field of nuclear disarmament during a giant press conference here Thursday.

For Southeast Asia, de Gaulle advocated neutralism, a stand which has previously been opposed by the United States.

On Europe, the French leader called for the continent to run its own affairs because "the reasons for subordination to America are disappearing one by one."

He told a questioner that "the division of the world into two camps led by Washington and Moscow no longer fits in with the new situation in the world."

On nuclear disarmament, de Gaulle described as "an improbable hypothesis" the hope that Russia and the United States would agree mutually to the disarmament of their nuclear strike power.

"The vain and interminable discussions at Geneva stem from this hypothesis," he said.

De Gaulle was speaking to 900 reporters as well as diplomats and other foreign visitors in the ballroom of the Elysee Presidential Palace.

Dealing with the crisis in Southeast Asia, de Gaulle called for a conference of all interested powers to meet the problem.

Red Rocket Silent

Venus Shot Should Be There

By ROBERT C. TOTH

WASHINGTON (LAT) — The success of the Russian Venus rocket, expected to come close to or possibly hit that planet this week, is in doubt.

Moscow's silence on its Zond 1 rocket has led to speculation among U.S. officials here that something went wrong with its instruments or radio transmitter.

Their calculations indicated that the spacecraft should have reached the cloud-covered Venus Monday or shortly thereafter, following nearly four months en route.

Two mid-course guidance corrections were expected by U.S. scientists to take the space craft considerably "closer" than the 22,000 miles at which the highly successful U.S. probe, Mariner, by-passed the cloud-covered planet last December.

Bodies Found In Car Trunk

QUINCY, Mass. (UPI) — The bodies of two men were found Thursday stuffed in the trunk of a parked car.

Police sought to determine whether the bodies were those of two missing Rhode Island men.

Some officials here figured the probe would come within 10,000 miles of Venus, while others still gave it a chance of impacting the planet's 800-degree Fahrenheit surface.

There remains the possibility that the Soviet craft unlike the U.S. Mariner, will store any information it collects and wait until it returns to earth's vicinity before transmitting back the data.

Britain's Jodrell Bank radio telescope has been trying to track the Russian vehicle for about a week, without success.

Creditists Lose Bid For Loan Amendment

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons Thursday night rejected by a vote of 98 to 12 a Creditist amendment to the government's bill to guarantee bank loans to university students.

The amendment would have required the federal government to allow Quebec a tax abatement for not participating in the plan instead of giving the province a cash settlement in lieu of the interest payments on the loans it will make in the other provinces.

Four Quebec Progressive Conservatives—Leon Balcer (Trois Rivières), Louis-Joseph Pigeon (Joliette - l'Assomption - Montcalm), Howard Graffley (Brome-Missisquoi) and Clement Vincent (Nicolet-Yamaska)—sided with eight Creditists in favor of the amendment.

Three other Quebec Conservatives—Paul Martineau (Pontiac-Témiscamingue), René Paul (Berthier - Maskinonge - Delandiere) and Gerard Ouellet (Rimouski)—abstained.

Finance Minister Gordon said the amount of cash involved, about $700,000, was too small to make a tax abatement practical.

He said the arithmetic of Gilles Grignon (Creditiste—La Pointe), mover of the amendment, was "as screwy as it could be."

New Dispute Over Doctor

CLEVELAND, Ohio (UPI) — Dr. Samuel Sheppard and his blonde (German) pen-pal bride of six days came to his home city Thursday for a "normal life" and immediately touched off a controversy by appearing on a television program.

Comedian Henry Morgan refused to go on the program as scheduled after hearing Dr. Sam describe his 10 years in prison for the murder of his wife as "hell, pure hell."

"I think it was nauseating," Morgan said. "Why should he be treated as a citizen?"

"He said, he sat around in prison thinking about broads. I wonder if he ever thought about his wife who was murdered."

America's Problem

NOT THE LEAST of the many contributory causes to the recent outbreak of racial riots throughout the United States is the fact that a considerable number of American Negroes have been led to believe that equality of civil rights can now only be achieved for their people through violent means.

Though this attitude is the very antithesis of the policy advocated by the majority of responsible Negro leaders and their followers, it is one which must not only be accepted but understood if it is to be changed.

The United States is not the first nation to be faced with such problems—nor will it be the last. Canadians, for instance, should not forget that the British Commonwealth, of which they are part, has been almost continually involved in similar predicaments for the past thirty years or more.

Canadians might also remember that freedom, or at least equality of civil rights, was granted to many of their Commonwealth fellow-members only after considerable blood had been shed. To recall that this was so, should not, of course, offer any condonation of the employment of such methods to attain the objective.

Rather should it go to point up that the quality of patience is a limited thing which can only be stretched so far before it breaks. It can only be assumed that this breaking point has now been reached by the America Negro—as it had earlier been reached by countless millions of Africans and Asians in the Commonwealth.

Certainly many of the Commonwealth African and Asian nations have gone through a similar phase—a phase when reason is abandoned—a phase when promises seemed but meaningless words—a phase when physical violence seemed all that was left to impress upon the civil administration the needs and desires of the people.

That such a course was followed at all seemed in those frequently troubled times nothing less than a major indictment of the very ideals under which we have chosen to govern and be governed.

In these days of comparative calm within the Commonwealth it may be said of those Commonwealth citizens who sought their liberty and rights through such means that they could have attained the same goal without violence, as indeed, many others have.

But it may also be said that this could—and can—happen only when men of good will and possessed of sound knowledge of each other's problems and ambitions are prepared to act in unison for the common good.

In this the United States is fortunate in that it has many men of both races well qualified to tackle the job. Further on its credit side is the fact that Americans in the main—be they black or white—are law-abiding citizens dedicated to the democratic way of life and its principle of extending justice and freedom to all men regardless of race, color or creed.

Because of this the United States will not only find a solution to its present difficulties but will emerge from them a stronger and more mature nation. Meanwhile it behooves the Western world—including Canada—to resist the temptation to interfere with pious statements and gratuitous advice.

Winter Works

BY A NEW RULING reducing its share of labor costs in community winter works undertakings, the British Columbia government has dealt the municipalities of the province a serious blow, according to Alderman Toone. Presumably in many cases the councils will simply not be able to carry out in full the programs they have adopted; if they do, they will have to find—somehow—more money.

Ottawa pays 50 cents of the labor bill on these special projects. Previously the province has paid the other half in the case of men who, before being hired, have been on welfare assistance for three months; otherwise it has paid a quarter and the local taxpayers a quarter. Now it will eliminate this latter arrangement, bearing only 50 per cent of the cost for workers taken from the ranks of welfare recipients.

The hitch here, from the municipal view, is that there may be very few usefully employable men who have spent three months or more dependent on public aid and unable to find work. Alderman Toone says about nine would have been eligible last year.

Essentially the question comes down to whether the provincial government has a responsibility, such as the federal government has assumed, to help to create additional seasonal employment generally through subsidization of special work at the municipal level, or whether it should be concerned only with promoting employment for a relatively few able-bodied men at or near the bottom of the labor market and thus removing them from direct public aid. (And, to be fair, from the danger of becoming habituated to this existence.)

The way to look at it surely is that every additional job in the off-season, no matter who gets it, is one more man off the list ahead of those less qualified, and moreover is of benefit throughout the whole economy. Every earner helps employ others. In this light the province would seem to be skipping on its proper part in the winter-works endeavor, and the municipalities, let down in their expectations, to have good grounds for protest.

Invisible But There

THERE IS A MAXIM about people who live in glass houses but it is being given a new twist.

The use of see-through building material is spreading to enliven the social scene, for business and home amenity as well as for aesthetic value. Where once a shop, office or other establishment was encased in brick or stone with only a narrow opening to reveal its content, now walls are becoming wide open to the passing gaze. It is a development that lends a spacious air to premises and is attractive to boot.

Apartments and homes are also adopting glass as a fundamental decor, with doors and walls of the same seemingly invisible structure. But there are pitfalls.

People are being warned that since glass unless streaked with dust doesn't betray its presence they are apt to walk through it with unpleasant consequences. Already numerous accidents are reported from areas where the door or wall, although not seen, isn't thereby physically to be ignored.

To derive the full beneficial pleasure of living behind glass, therefore, it looks as though a new safety habit will be advisable—that of making one's approach with the hand held well out in front.

Thinking Aloud

... of shoes, and ships, and sealing wax ...

By TOM TAYLOR

YOU would be shocked if I summoned a vision of Father Nicholas and said that one of his henchmen, suitably attired in the familiar red suit, was about to come to town. Yet he'll come soon enough, you'd growl, with the Christmas chores abruptly thrust to mind. Which he will, and he has no business to arrive before we've even had summer. Yet a herald of winter was in town this week, although probably he doesn't think of himself in that light. Not, I fancy, that he'd care.

But if an image is to attach to persons then winter can't be left out of the reckoning of Mr. George (Punch) Imlach, a gentleman I have never met but who indubitably speaks this doleful season of the year.

Is he not a hockey impresario of the first rank? And does not hockey immediately associate itself with ice and snow? Granted that normally the ice in Victoria is confined indoors and the snow is off either happily absent or of small portion, but ...

The weather gods have been so unkind this year that one looks ahead with fear and trembling. Have they forsaken us altogether?

For never in all my born days have so many of my pals been so disgruntled as they have been this alleged heyday of 1964 in the fairest isle in the Western Hemisphere.

No wonder a writer on this page a few days ago wondered where Victoria's summer had been spending the summer.

I wouldn't add to the current period of discontent but even the dictionary has been led astray. What does it say of the second season of the year? Why, the "hot" season!

And here it is, with nothing but a minus to mark against traditional sunny months of long standing, that a precursor to whom winter must be a supreme delight comes to organize us for its onrush.

It ain't fair. He destroys whatever lingering hope remains that the gods have time yet to make ample restitution. He invokes thoughts of red underwear.

Mind you, I suppose Mr. Imlach could be viewed as a kind of Santa Claus and therefore not unwelcome. The hockey fans may think so even while grumbling at Mr. Mackie, an innocent caught up himself in the vagaries of climatic inclemency.

Mr. Imlach is giving us a hockey team and thus the promise of joy and excitement unbought, providing of course we pay up at the box office. So maybe he is to be regarded as a benefactor.

But, judged by the pattern of present unseasonable days, he is disturbing. Already the shades of night, as it were, have been draped before us by the football Lions, gearing themselves for the fall that so soon may usher in the winter.

And that seems to twist the calendar upside down, the calendar which proclaims daily that by all the laws of the Medes and Persians we are in the middle of summer.

Hope springs eternal, however, as the poets are fond of saying. Maybe there will be a cause come December and January to wonder where Victoria's winter is spending the winter.

And that couldn't hurt Mr. Imlach or his local Maple Leafs, who perform their wintry calisthenics inside a nice warm building.

Indeed it should cheer his heart, as well as those currently broken by the unfeeling dispensation of summer fate.

Ottawa Offbeat

A Possible Turning of the Tide

By RICHARD JACKSON, Colonist Ottawa Bureau

SOMETHING happened in Parliament the other day that just might turn out to have been a political watershed.

It was just a sentence, but it could be the first faint signal of a coming shift in the parliamentary wind.

It came from New Democratic Leader J. C. "Tommy" Douglas in the form of a question. Were not, he asked, worriedly, the United Nations and Canada "being played for a sucker" in Cyprus?

Those were his words, the "jargon of the street," as he conceded. And that he should use such a phrase, "played for a sucker," was clear indication of his deep doubt and concern.

Had the question been asked by a Conservative, or even one of the more down-to-earth practical politicians of the Liberal backbench who long have suspected that perhaps our own domestic affairs might be at least as important as the questionable business of global meddling, the House would have skipped over it, shrugging.

Currently, Canada is involved in eight UN peace operations: India and Pakistan, Palestine, Yemen, Lebanon, West Bank, Guinea, Cyprus and Korea, having just finished with the Congo. (Forgot about Korea, eh? That's been going on since 1953 and it costs an annual $20,000 just to keep one officer and an NCO there.)

Why does Canada, at best only a small or middle power, do it?

Well, Senator Gratton O'Leary had a word to say on that not long ago in the Senate:

"It is false and phony national pride. We are attempting to take over areas all over the world which, whatever it may say for our good intentions, tells very little about our realism and good sense."

One of the reasons, he said, for this expensive dog-woeing—add the $59,000,000 it takes to run the external affairs department to the $190,000,000 in foreign aid and the $18,000,000 in UN peace-keeping and you get a grand $267,000,000 total—was plain and simple conceit. The $267,000,000 was the price Canadians paid, he suggested, in "ministering to the petty vanity of certain people who strut their little hour of glory in this country in the field of foreign affairs."

So who's right? The "professors" who currently wield the power in the federal government, or the practical politicians?

Item: Speaking of Canadian involvement abroad, Carleton University Professor Dr. Douglas Anglin, on his return from an assignment in Nigeria, declared publicly in a speech his "deep concern with the extent of corruption in high places. Fat salaries, kickbacks, big houses and cars, all are the benefits of foreign aid."

Item: Dr. Claude H. Vipond of Oshawa, on his return from an external affairs department mission to Ceylon, revealed that "the Sultan of Pahang was building a $2,500,000 pleasure palace while trucks repairing roads on his estate were foreign aid gifts from Canada."

Item: George Chatterton, Conservative MP for Esquimalt-Saanich, is still rather bemused to recall how at a Geneva conference Ghana's Kwame Nkrumah cased into a Cadillac limousine while the entire Canadian delegation jammed itself into a Volkswagen station wagon.

Item: Walk into the delegates' dining room at the UN any, in this case really, "high" noon, and find the tables of many representatives of some of the African states completely encircled by wine buckets.

Item: Harold Winch, NDP MP, on his return from a mission to Nigeria, declared in the Commons that foreign aid was going to "provide mansions, chauffeured limousines and luxury living for a few potentates."

And now, of all people, Tommy Douglas is wondering if Canadians aren't being "played for suckers."

It could be the turning of the foreign aid tide.

Stop-and-Frisk and No-Knock

Abrogation of Rights

By SHAUN HERRON

THEY'RE going to have some fun in New York for a while, now that the state has its stop-and-frisk and the no-knock laws.

In rough, the stop-and-frisk law authorizes the police to stop and search anyone they think may have committed a crime, is in the act of doing so or intends to do so.

The no-knock law allows the police to go to a judge and get permission to break into premises without ceremony, if the police believe evidence could be destroyed or a suspect escape while doors are knocked and warrants presented. Any door or window will do.

A great many people in the state are far from happy about it and it seems likely that the law will soon be tested in the courts.

These laws are, of course, efforts to help the police in their losing war with criminals. Crime registered another substantial increase over the past year in the United States and the forces of law and order are obviously unable to contain the advance. They have been crying for some abrogation of the rights of the innocent in order that they may capture and convict the guilty.

The public shares police concern, but not at the expense of their own free movement when and how it pleases them to move.

And freedom to move without let or hindrance must not be as readily assumed as it at one time was. In Los Angeles, for example, Aldous Huxley and his wife once went for a small hours stroll down a suburban street on a hot night and were taken to the police station because policemen in Los Angeles found it difficult to believe an innocent pair would be out walking, and of all times, at night.

A neighbor of mine was held all night in a New Hampshire police station because she was driving through a town at 2 a.m. and, most improbable of all, was driving alone. The explanation that she couldn't sleep and came out for air, provoked an interrogation that lasted until 6 a.m. During this time she was not allowed to telephone anyone, and a substantial measure of the questioning was of an insulting and impertinent nature about her personal life.

I have known a parsonage to be raided in a Canadian city because of a malicious tip to the police that its basement was stacked with arms, ammunition and bootleg liquor. One of the things that bothers some New Yorkers about the

No-Knock law is the prospect of unleashing the practical joker or the malignant prankster as an anonymous police telephone tipper. One man put it to me this way: "All some malicious guy has to do now, say after a jail break, or when a big hunt is on, is to tip the police that one of the criminals is holed up in my house, and they can break my door down."

The nervous and angry among the public say also that the sort of example the police have given, to illustrate their new powers, doesn't begin to describe the uses to which officers may legally put them.

It would indeed be trying to be burst in upon in the midst of one's legitimate, domestic felicities and this alone is enough to make New Yorkers determined to challenge in the courts what they regard as a breach of their constitutional rights.

The laws should not be on the books too long. An American's home is his castle too.

Part of the alarm people express about the new laws has its roots in their view of the police. It has deeper roots, of course, for it raises genuine concern about the proper safeguards to which every citizen is entitled. But with this goes a generally unflattering assessment of police capacity to use the law wisely or even avoid its abuse.

There are excellent police forces in the United States, but the only one whose integrity is universally unquestioned is the FBI. I have been unable to discover anyone of my acquaintance who feels enough confidence in the police to entrust them with the powers they now have in the state of New York.

Apart from questions relating to the intelligence and discretion of the man on the beat, a more immediate question is the capacity of the police to keep their heads under pressure, if such sweeping powers are in their hands. (Some of the men on the beat say they won't risk using them at all.)

"Suppose," says my New Yorker, "they are under public or political pressure to clean up some situation with which they have had no success—I'm inclined to believe that with these powers they would now soon be bullying whole neighborhoods in frantic effort to turn something up."

"Mind you," he says, "this sort of argument is not the fundamental one. It comes to mind because our police are not always our pride and joy."

The police explain that the law requires them to have some reasonable grounds for action, but when they say "such as a description of a man, 5 feet 10 inches, heavily built, and dark," it would probably be quite useless.

Other than fighting tooth and nail against the proposed fare hike by the B.C. Hydro, the municipalities concerned should go no further at the present time.

The proposed hike in fares is a sterile act, a calculated coercive act designed to force premature action on the part of the municipalities, which it now seems to be achieving.

At the risk of being called an ostrich, I feel we should dig in and resist all or any attempts for the early conclusion of any "deals." The expiration of the transit franchises and the term of the present government will, in the normal course of events, closely follow one another. If the transfer of the transit system to the municipalities is as inevitable as some believe, then logically, as the two events draw ever closer, it is conceivable that inducements will grow greater. The sacrifice of a half-dozen seats, and maybe the balance of power, which could happen, may prove too high a price to pay for unilateral arbitrary action.

H. SHERGOLD,
1977 Salfair Crescent.

"Corking"

In your July 5 issue you had an article about "corking" on the water. This is all very fine providing the water is perfectly calm, otherwise it's a bunch of hogwash and not worth the space and that just about sums it up. It is in any danger of drowning, except in a bathtub, it would probably be quite useless.

A. CATON, Ottawa.

There is already real concern

I wish to compliment Mr. Ian Street for his article entitled "B.C. needs its own financial heart." Surely the people of B.C. should stand together, no matter what their political affiliations may be, when anything is suggested by the present government, that will be to the benefit of our province.

Unfortunately, Ottawa being aware of our lack of united purpose, has in the past, ruled adversely to our disadvantage. I need only mention their lack of interest in our railroad and ferry needs to confirm this attitude.

The fact that the Liberals in opposition here are the only ones fighting the granting of the charter for the Bank of B.C. is a reflection of the attitude of the government at Ottawa, so it will require a united effort of the people of B.C. to overcome this obstacle. And to quote Mr. Street when he says, "at this vital stage in our development there is a need that we, the province, not the government, be in a position to at least compete with other financial centres," may we have this in mind when the chips are down.

The Minus Man

Tasteless Existence

By CASSANDRA
from London

FROM the United States comes news that the huge mail-order firm of Sears Roebuck is now marketing the stingless bee.

This is part of a trend that has fascinated me for some time and I have watched the possibilities and commiserated in the past on such things as safety dynamite that cannot explode and non-inflammable coal produced to minimize the risk of fire.

The scope in this field is enormous and its ultimate purpose is to reduce humanity to the status of the Lesser Spine-wort. It is the wet damp vegetable world of The Minus Man.

It encompasses the life of the rose without a thorn; the battle without the bang; the booze-up without the hangover (note the current popularity of odorless vodka which means you can get crocked without the smell of the Volga boatman whooping it up after a night out at Nizhny-Novgorod); love without children and coffee without caffeine.

It is the blade without a cutting edge; the quarrel without a hard word; the deep end where you can always touch the bottom; old age without a wrinkle; anger without a frown and measles without spots.

Mr. Russell Baker, writing from Washington on this theme of life that has no shape, no taste, no smell and no feel, has some eloquent words on the Minus Man of the Nothing Generation in the Non-Age.

He sees men with faces that do not grow beards, having painless toothache, living in a no-down-payment house.

On the television this all too serene creature watches non-actors performing non-dramas about non-people absorbing advertisements that tell him how to take the misery out of washing day.

He even consorts with girls who wear the topless evening gown which, as Mr. Russell Baker grimly observes, removes the last disturbing thread of curiosity from his dehydrated, shredded, filleted, sex-decontaminated existence.

The new Minus Man of 1964 is worse, I think, than George Orwell's 1984.

He learns French without tears, goes out into the snow without enduring the cold, touches nettles without suffering a rash, and has all the salt, mustard and pepper of life reduced into a harmless solution of tasteless distilled water.

Today In History

By The Canadian Press

The bloodiest battle of the War of 1812 was fought at Lundy's Lane, Ont., 150 years ago today—in 1814. Although neither side could claim victory, the battle checked the advance of invading American forces into Canada and forced their withdrawal to Fort Erie.

Out of fewer than 3,000 men, the defenders suffered 878 casualties with 84 killed, while the American loss was 171 killed of the total of 853 casualties.

1534—Jacques Cartier landed at the site of Gaspé, Que., and took possession of the land for France.

1847—Mormon leader Brigham Young approved the site of what later became Salt Lake City.

Approved Bank Shares Up

By HARRY YOUNG Colonist Business Editor

The Senate banking and commerce committee's recommendation that charters should be granted to the Bank of Western Canada and to the Laurentide Bank, gave shares in these companies an upward movement Thursday.

The subscribed units of the Bank of Western Canada rose from $16 to $17 overnight, and remained that way most of the day, while the shares of Laurentide Finance, which will own the Laurentide Bank, rose from $15 1/2 to $16 1/2.

TEMPERED

As it might be anything between six months and two years before the applications for the new banks are finally processed through Parliament, there is naturally a tempered enthusiasm for the leap of the first senate hurdle. All is not yet plain sailing.

The two privately-owned banks, however, are off to a better start than the Bank of British Columbia, sponsored by the B.C. legislature. The senate has withheld its decision for at least a week, and it is clear that the solons of Ottawa fear that provincial entry into the field of banking might be yet another undermining of federal authority in an area in which it has hitherto been unchallenged.

There is some feeling in financial circles that the senate committee gave Laurentide its quick approval in order to show that it was not against British Columbia having a resident bank, but at the same time hoping this will give them a way out of having to agree to a bank in which the B.C. government would have at least an influential interest.

STERLING IN DUMPS

A weakness in the Canadian bond market that has dropped prices of government securities by about a quarter point in the past few days, is attributed to fears that Britain may be again facing another of its periodic financial crises.

The value of the pound on the foreign exchange market has dropped below the central peg of $2.80, and its present level of about $2.78 1/2 indicates that some pressure is being brought to bear on sterling.

The market fear is that the Bank of England may once again be forced to raise its bank rate, and this in turn would tend to siphon funds out of the Canadian money market.

Thursday is the normal day for any change in the British bank rate and as nothing happened yesterday, it would appear that the current rate of five per cent is good for another week at least.

FORD'S BIG PROFIT

Ford Motor Company earnings in the second quarter of 1964 were $179,700,999 ($1.63 a share), up 15 per cent from a year ago.

WINGDAM TRIES AGAIN

Completely out of funds, Wingdam and Lightning Creek is now offering its shareholders rights to buy new shares at 10 cents apiece.

This is to replenish the capital and to enable it to continue exploratory work on its property south of Barkerville.

The sale has been blocked by the SEC for sale of the rights in the U.S. and the company has applied for delisting of its stock on the Vancouver Stock Exchange to relieve it of filing requirements there.

YIELDS UNCHANGED

The yield on the 91 days Canadian treasury bills Thursday was unchanged from the previous week at 3.50 per cent.

NEIGHBOR'S BIG WEEK

This has been one of the best weeks in the history of Washington state.

More than $170,000,000 of new business has been announced in the past few days for the Puget Sound area.

They're at Home at Sea

When construction worker Glen Craig and his family go on vacation they take their home with them.

This year—as on many past occasions—they have brought it to Victoria.

It's the 45-foot power yacht Denali which is home to the Craigs.

Four years ago, Mr. Craig sold his ranch in southern Idaho and moved aboard the Denali. So did his wife, Barbara, sons

Bob, 14, Joe, 12, and the pet collie, Lady.

Most of the time the Denali is moored off Juneau, Alaska, where Mr. Craig works. But this week the family came down Vancouver Island on holiday.

"Victoria is one of our favorite spots," said Mr. Craig as he sat on deck in the sunshine in the Inner Harbor Thursday. "We like to live this way, you can go practically anywhere. And it doesn't take long to get used to."

Poliomyelitis Suspect In Fair Condition

Capt. George Hillier of Port Albion remains in an iron lung at Royal Jubilee Hospital in fairly satisfactory condition.

His illness, while suspected to be poliomyelitis, has not been officially established as such, said Dr. Murray Anderson, medical administrative officer of the hospital, in giving the latest news Thursday in the case of the 60-year-old fisherman.

New Home Recipe Reducing Plan

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat. This home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drug store and ask for four ounces of Naran Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoons full a day as needed and follow the Naran Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves, if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloated disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

NANAIMO—RCMP have the identity of the original owner of a rifle used in the slaying of John Leslie Brian Dixon and Dianne Phipps at Piper's Lagoon, near Nanaimo, Oct. 16, 1962, it was learned Thursday.

Members of a special squad investigating the murder said in Nanaimo Thursday the weapon was originally owned by Robert Ralph Dillabough, a former CNR station agent and telegrapher at Savona, B.C., who died on March 15, 1951. The rifle is a .22 calibre, model 63 Winchester semi-automatic, serial 41619A.

PUBLIC AUCTION

Mr. Dillabough's estate was handled by D. T. Rogers of a Kamloops law firm. Parts of the estate were sold and other assets, including the murder weapon, were advertised for sale at a public auction held in Kamloops Feb. 19, 1955 by auctioneer George Shelton who has since died.

The identity of the original owner of the weapon was established April 22, 1964, by the Dixon Phipps murder squad but in spite of extensive inquiries police have no conclusive information about what subsequently became of the rifle.

Const. Dan Creely of the special detail, said they are assuming the murder weapon was sold at the auction.

SAW OR BID

Police are interested particularly in interviewing persons who attended the auction in Kamloops and either saw the rifle on display, bid on it, or had any knowledge at all that it was for sale at a public auction.

Const. Creely said the rifle would have been in immaculate condition before the auction.

The bodies of Les Dixon and Dianne Phipps, both 19, were found Oct. 17, seven miles apart in the Nanaimo area.

Vehicle Tests Soon?

A voluntary car testing station will probably be set up at the end of August, police chief J. F. Gregory told Rotarians Thursday.

Offices at St. Joseph's Hospital will test their disaster facilities tonight with a simulated earthquake.

Traffic will be closed off Humboldt Street between Rupert and Blanshard while the exercise is in progress, and only hospital officials with identification will be allowed into the area.

Full endorsement of the stand taken by Mayor Wilson and other municipal leaders on the B.C. Hydro proposal to boost bus fares was given Thursday by city council.

Another $40,000 was added to the capital budget program and cost schedule for urban renewal by city council on Thursday.

Remember when Bonded Stock came in that plain old bottle?

Well it doesn't anymore.

That fine old bottle has launched its last sip.

We've designed a new container for Gooderham's Bonded Stock. Tall and refined with classic lines. (Our whisky's now in the best shape ever).

And we age Bonded Stock longer now as well. To make every drop just a little more mellow.

One thing though. Bonded Stock's smooth lightness we don't change. Our blenders know a good thing when they taste it.

Judging from the number of people who buy Bonded Stock Whisky, so does the rest of the country.

Gooderham's have been distilling fine whiskies since 1832

Speaking Briefly

Cassius Denies Any Romance

Heavyweight boxing champ, Cassius Clay last night denied rumors that he was married and said that when he does take the plunge he won't be keeping it any secret.

Clay was spotted at Miami International Airport holding the hand of an attractive woman in a yellow frock.

However, Clay declined to identify the girl or say what he was doing at the airport.

AL GEIBERGER led a whole-sale assault on par in the opening round of the $30,000 insurance City Open golf tournament in Hartford, Conn., yesterday with a seven-under-par 64.

Clay, when I get married the whole world is going to know it," added the champ.

There are some pretty nasty words in the golfers' vocabulary. "Slice" gives you a sinking feeling in the stomach, "shank" has sounded the death-sentence on many a promising round. Quite the most nightmarish of the lot, however, is "cheat."

Let's establish two facts right away:

Firstly, of all the ball games played for prize-money or pleasure, it is probably easier to cheat at golf than any other.

If it's a friendly round, it's 100-1 that no-one would ever know if you nudged your ball out of an impossible lie under a bush or counted eight strokes instead of nine as you excavated a plugged ball from a bunker.

Secondly, for all this opportunity, cheating is almost unknown. Most golfers soon realize that the real challenge of the game is less man against man than man against course. Therefore you are only cheating yourself.

Of course, there are exceptions. I know of the case of one low-handicap club player who will never play another competition round.

It was proved that he had cheated his way to several valuable prizes. He left the club under a cloud and, some months later, quietly tried to join another one more than 100 miles away.

Word, however, had already travelled faster than he had. His application for membership was quietly turned down without explanation. Quite right, too.

Astonishing Scandal

I raise this distasteful subject this week because of the quite astonishing scandal that is about to break on the American tournament circuit. Cheating is cheating, of course, if you're playing for half a pint of lukewarm beer—but on the vastly rich U.S. golf trail it suddenly assumes the proportions of financial embezzlement.

It is almost beyond belief, then, that the name of Arnold Palmer should be involved. The accusation isn't against Palmer himself but the implication is there. The story is this.

After the second round of last week's United States PGA championship a rival reported to the referee that a wild approach shot by Palmer had been caught by one of his fans as it sailed towards deep rough.

The fan is then alleged to have tossed it towards the flagstick giving Arnold a simple chip-up and single putt. Palmer himself told the referee that he never saw the incident.

Now these two statements don't quite add up. But of one thing you can be absolutely certain. Arnold Palmer, one of the best-living and most generous men ever to reach the top at golf, would never at any time be party to an incident like this. If it did happen then you can rest assured that Palmer genuinely did not see it.

Yet naturally all the evidence must be thoroughly investigated and, logically, there must be a chance that Palmer's name is struck from the record of that tournament.

This is a nightmare situation for a man who has done more than any other to re-establish big golf as a world-wide spectacle. I only hope that in the atmosphere of near-hysteria under which some of these American tournaments are run, Arnie's name is completely cleared.

Only by knowing him well do I know that it is simply inconceivable that he could remotely become involved in such skulduggery.

Let any man who has been tempted to tap his ball into a better lie, or manipulate his handicap to temporary advantage, take good note of these words.

Always on His Honor

A golfer, whether he be a Ryder Cup star or a local course rabbit, is always on his honor. Cheating is the one despicable crime and it will always be ruthlessly punished.

Sometimes it is hard to distinguish the thin line that separates gamesmanship from cheating.

There is the case of a well-known player who had the disturbing habit of crossing his feet always distractingly shod in white, as his opponent was about to drive off.

There was another international player who for years had the ghastly habit of jingling coins in his pocket as his opponent was playing. That stopped, however, when—mercifully out of the eyes of the press photographers—an enraged competitor suddenly straightened up and knocked the fellow backwards into a bunker.

That remains one of the great untold dramas of golf and all the gold in Fort Knox wouldn't prise the names of the participants in that little brawl out of me!

In big tournaments it has also become a recognized tactic that you often go hard for the green in the almost certain knowledge that the ball will hit some spectator at the back and thus probably save you a shot hacking it out of the rough.

But that's letting you into some of the tricks of the trade.

Still, gamesmanship to a degree I accept. But cheating, never! Which is why I hope to read sometime in the coming weeks that Arnold Palmer's name has been completely cleared from the unfortunate event in which he found himself involved last week.

Rocks Get 10-1 Revenge
Five-Year Drought Ends

NEW WESTMINSTER

(Special)—Victoria Shamrocks wiped away five years of frustration here last night, riddling New Westminster, 10-1, to tie the Royal City club for second place in the Inter-City Lacrosse League.

It's been five years and 33 games since Shamrocks' last claimed victory in Queen's Park Arena—July 2, 1959, to be exact, when Jack Showers scored with the Rocks short-handed and five seconds left for a 14-13 win.

Since then the closest they've come was an 11-11 overtime tie in their first visit here this season, and in between there was nothing but bad memories.

REMEMBER?

Shamrocks particularly remember the night they came here to face Les Norman, and got shot out, 23-0. Revenge was a long time coming, but they got it here last night.

Norman was in goal for New Westminster, and this time he found out how the other half lives. Shamrocks, backed by some standout goaltending by rookie Skip Chapman, poured 33 shots at Norman, and on some they made him look particularly bad.

It was 2-0 at the quarter, 5-1 at the half and 7-1 going into the final period. The only man to beat Chapman was Mike Gates, who picked up a loose ball in the corner and moved in front to score midway in the second quarter.

HAPPY GOALIE

Chapman wasn't around when the Rocks took that 23-0 lacing. Still, he had reasons of his own to crow last night as he made 25 stops, 11 of them in the last quarter.

Chapman is a New Westminster product. Last year he came up from junior ranks and sat on the bench as Norman's understudy, never getting much chance to see what he could do.

This year he came to the Rocks, where he'd have a chance to play. And New Westminster let him go without a word.

NEW WESTMINSTER

There were other Shamrock stars besides Chapman. Mostly there was Billy Gray, playing his finest game since coming Admittedly, the win came against a weakened New Westminster club. Jack Bionda, Jack Barclay, Cliff Sepka and Don Boyd did not play, but Shamrocks weren't exactly healthy either, with Ron Jay, Ed Kowalyk, Jack Showers and Dick Crompton sitting out.

Into senior lacrosse, Gray took five shots—and scored five goals. Juniors Rod Kidduff and John Hansen also made their presence known. Kidduff with two goals,

NEW WESTMINSTER

Hansen with a goal and an assist. Jim McNeill and Bill Bradley got the other goals, with Bill Munroe getting three assists.

Chapman wasn't around when the Rocks took that 23-0 lacing. Still, he had reasons of his own to crow last night as he made 25 stops, 11 of them in the last quarter.

Chapman is a New Westminster product. Last year he came up from junior ranks and sat on the bench as Norman's understudy, never getting much chance to see what he could do.

This year he came to the Rocks, where he'd have a chance to play. And New Westminster let him go without a word.

Sudden-Death Twins
Dead by Own Weapon

MINNESOTA

Minnesota Twins have that sudden-death power in a batting order which may have no equal in the major baseball leagues but it's not delivering in the sudden-death situations.

When Harmon Killebrew, in hot pursuit of a new home-run record, hit his 34th home run last night it brought the Minnesota total of four-basers to 147 in 95 games.

AN OLD STORY

But, as has been the case more often than not, it didn't win. The Twins lost, 3-4, to Kansas City Athletics in the 11th inning, dropped below .500 and stayed in a fifth-place tie

Daily Olympic Hour

TORONTO (CP)

The CBC will provide daily television coverage of one hour on the Olympic Games in Japan during October by way of the new American communications satellite Syncom III, the corporation announced Thursday.

IT'S 30/30

The announcement said the CBC will have "exclusive Canadian coverage" and a daily package between Oct. 10 and Oct. 24 will consist of 30 minutes in English and 30 in French.

The CBC also said it will co-operate with the European Broadcasting Union to provide European viewers with same-day coverage.

The U.S. National Aeronautics and Space Administration plans to launch Syncom III mid-August into a hovering orbit 22,500 miles above the Pacific. The Left-hander Des Moseley, probably the best pitcher in the Senior Amateur Baseball League was in top form last night as Greaves downed second-place Independents, 7-0.

Moseley struck out nine and allowed only two singles, in the sixth inning to Steve Bishop and Jim Moody.

Gary Tuttle led the Greaves attack with three hits and two runs batted in, while Larry Montgomery banged in two runs with a sixth-inning triple.

The loss dropped Independents three games behind defending champion Transport Workers, and brought Greaves to within two games of Independents.

Jim Cunningham and Bob Anderson netted two apiece for Jokers and Sohny Vickery, Al Tarbett and Pat Mulcahy accounted for Jokers' other goals.

Water skiers will be swarming over Shawnigan Lake this weekend as some of the best from B.C., Alberta, Washington and Oregon compete in a two-day western Canada championships.

More than 100 entrants are expected. Competition is split into men's, boys', senior men's, girls' and women's divisions, with slalom, trick and jumping events in all divisions.

Event is co-sponsored by Victoria Aqua-Ski Club and the Junior League of Queen Alexandra Solarium.

Among the athletes entered are Washington state senior men's champion Lou West of Seattle, and Bank Belcher of Lake Stevens, Wash., believed to be the oldest competitor at 65.

Competition starts at 9 a.m. Saturday.

Go and get them . . . just about anywhere in the saltchuck. Fishing is now hitting its peak for this year and on the east coast of the Island it is now the best it has been for some years.

The coho showed up in fair numbers Wednesday in Sooke. Secretary Island — Becher Bay waters and this weekend could see the best coho fishing of the year in those waters.

The same waters are still producing a few big springs, up to 41 pounds, but they take a lot of fishing.

Fishing is improving in Oak Bay waters for springs around Tidal Island, The Gap, Chain Islands and Ten Mile Point. The odd coho has been showing.

East Point, Active Pass, Portler Pass and the Flat Top and Five Fingers Islands off Nanaimo are now entering their best fishing periods.

Deep Cove waters are producing coho and springs.

Some of the best fishing for small jacks and coho, not many of them reaching five pounds, is now to be found in the Bamberton to Mill Bay waters. Spoons with flashers, nylon line with eight to 12 ounces, have been getting them and they are also being taken with wire line . . . 30 feet and planer in the early morning and 150 to 200 feet later in the day.

Cole Bay has been good spot for the bigger springs, but it takes a lot of fishing time to get them.

Misery Bay — Chesterfield Rock — Goldstream Island triangle is still one of the hottest spots for springs up to 12 pounds.

Saanich Inlet anglers can fish the Victoria Shrine Club derby Sunday with 46 prizes up for grabs, including a 19-inch portable television set as a consolation prize.

Cowichan Bay is picking up, but there are more springs showing than being caught.

Qualicum, French Creek, Qualicum Bay, Deep Bay are all good for coho and some big springs are now showing in the Comox type pool.

The waterfront all the way from Little River through to Saratoga Beach, Oyster Bay, Shelter Point and Campbell River is hot for coho.

With several good-sized catches already reported in Alberni Inlet, Alberni Valley Tye Club is preparing to open the 1964 season on Aug. 2.

An executive headed by Norman Doll has announced dates of various feature events of the season. An open derby on Sept. 5, 6 and 7 will see $400 given as prize money. Port Boat House is the official weigh-in station and all fish must be on the wharf by 9 p.m.

The week of Aug. 30 to Sept. 7 is Tye Week, with special trophies for senior and junior members catching the largest fish and another award for the smallest fish weighed in during the week. A cruise on Alberni Inlet and Barkley Sound aboard the MV Lady Rose will take place on Sunday, Aug. 30.

Junior members will compete for merchandise prizes on Sunday, Sept. 13, and the Reece Riley Memorial Trophy will be awarded to the junior catching the largest tye during the season.

At the close of the season on Oct. 3, the 100 fishermen catching the largest fish during the qualifying rounds will be eligible for competition in the main club derby, Oct. 6.

Vice-president Tom York is in charge of the three-day open derby.

Other members of the executive are Mrs. M. Gibson, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. A. Crossland, Lawrence Sallor, Pete Karsholt, Art Green, J. Cameron and Wally Maxmenko, directors.

Victoria Fish and Game Club will hold its second annual Don Clare Memorial Trap Shoot Sunday at the Goldstream grounds starting at 1 p.m., with all competitors welcome for the 74-bird handicap event.

Elk River Timber Co. will place a partial closure on the Gold River Road (which also means the road to Port Hardy) for this weekend only, while it blacktops the trestle at the start of the road. Road will be closed from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, but open after 6 a.m. today.

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Lions football club, dissatisfied with their present stomping grounds at Empire Stadium here, are thinking of building their own stadium in suburban Burnaby.

Top Athletes Withdraw

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two of Canada's top athletes have announced their withdrawal from the British Columbia team competing in the Olympic preview track and field meet here Sept. 19.

Jana Lundy of Vancouver, Canada's best long jumper, said she will withdraw to give some other athlete a chance to make the Olympic team.

She is 14 and too young to be eligible for the Olympic squad. Her place will be filled by Jill Guillaume of Trail, another long-jump star.

The second athlete to withdraw is Burnaby's Dave Steen, holder of the Canadian shot put record. He is recovering from weakness caused by a bout with mononucleosis. His place will be filled by Vancouver's Helen Bezdek, a shot put-discus star.

Lions' president Clayton B. Delbridge said today the WFC club had initiated discussions for construction of a 40,000-seat stadium on Simon Fraser University property.

Delbridge said the proposed stadium would have 20,000 fully-covered seats on each side of the field and parking facilities for 9,000 cars. Empire Stadium has 32,729 seats, only a portion of which are covered.

"We of the Lions feel that we would be negligent if we did not attempt to create facilities suitable for our sports fans," said Delbridge, who has been critical in the past of the Empire facilities.

He said the Simon Fraser stadium would be a co-operative undertaking. "We would put up some of the initial money, which we would get back later in a rental arrangement as a tenant. The government would put up the rest of the money."

Harry Mulholland, president of the Pacific National Exhibition which rents Empire Stadium to the Lions, said he didn't think the club would build in Burnaby, "not when almost 100 per cent of their membership lives in Vancouver."

Opening Batsmen Score Record 201

MANCHESTER (Reuters) — Australia had scored 253 for two wickets by the close. Winning the toss for the first time in this series proved lucky for Simpson. He and Lawry carefully played themselves in and mastered the six bowlers used by England before they were separated when Lawry was run out after batting for 281 minutes.

England's opening pace attack of Fred Rumsey, a new cap, and John Price kept the batsmen quiet in the early stages when the ball lifted occasionally.

Later, medium-pace Tom Cartwright, also a new cap, and spinners Fred Titmus and John Mortimore had spells when they subdued the Australians.

Scores of other matches played yesterday follow:

Surrey 274 and 115 for 3; Glamorgan 178; Hampshire 264 and 59 for 3; Somerset 192; Kent 121 and 112; Leicestershire 131; Essex 288 and 21 for 1; Sussex 278; Gloucestershire 228 and 18 for 1; Middlesex 344 for 8 declared; Northamptonshire 156 and 15 for 1; Warwickshire 133; Wiltshire 133; Yorkshire 297; Worcestershire 294 for 7.

This is the first year of competition in the double-knockout tournament. Three games are scheduled for Saturday with the final Sunday.

Glengarry Inquiry Told:

Medical Help Demanded When Mother Was in Pain

A coroner's jury heard Thursday how a daughter found her mother when she went to visit her in a private hospital.

Mrs. Charles MacLeod, giving

JIM FROST

Seen In Passing

Jim Frost operating a power mower. (An Oak Bay municipal employee, he is a truck driver in the maintenance department but mows all Uplands boulevards during the summer months. He and wife, Karin, live at 236 Acorn Avenue. His hobby is water-skiing. . . . Ray Powell working in a department store. . . . Ray Fell relating how he picked some daffodils. . . . Cliff Irvine building a boat. . . . Lloyd Dodge walking past in a hurry. . . . Mildred Bell going to a tea party. . . . Roger Hall going for a walk. . . . Bob Johnson talking about a lacrosse game.

evidence at the inquest into the death of her mother, Mrs. Jessie Charlton Little, completed her evidence at the end of the third day of inquiry.

The inquest reconvenes today at 2 p.m. with one more witness to be heard.

MOVED

Mrs. Little, a patient at Glengarry Private Hospital, was moved to St. Joseph's Hospital Feb. 27, and died there the next day.

Mrs. MacLeod said she went to visit her mother and found her breathing labored, her face ashen and tears rolling down her cheeks. She was lying flat, and when Mrs. MacLeod lifted her head, her face contorted with pain. Mrs. MacLeod also saw bruises on her mother's arms and a swelling on her shoulder. She was told a doctor had been called and would come after office hours, but Mrs. MacLeod said she insisted one be brought immediately.

BROKEN ARM

At St. Joseph's, Mrs. MacLeod said, it was some time, because of the pain, before her mother could be lifted onto a bed. The X-rays showed a dislocated, fractured arm.

She said she had not moved her mother, or rubbed her back that day at Glengarry.

Mrs. Phyllis Skelton, whose mother occupied a bed opposite Mrs. Little's, said she had been there but had not seen Mrs. MacLeod move Mrs. Little.

REFUSED DUTIES

Mrs. Frances Firbank, former employee at Glengarry, said that she was hired as a ward maid but was asked to do practical nurse duties and refused, but had fed Mrs. Little as a nurse's aid.

She said that, after working at St. Joseph's, she did not think "everything was all right" at Glengarry.

In earlier evidence it was stated that Mrs. Little's arm had dropped when she was on the stretcher and this could have contributed to the pain and shock, but ambulance attendant Peter Bourne said that at no time did Mrs. Little's arm fall.

William Osland, administrator, said he was satisfied with the way the hospital was run.

He said Mrs. MacLeod was not informed of her mother's accident because it was the hospital's policy to let doctors get in touch with next-of-kin. He denied Mrs. MacLeod was not informed because she might be critical of the handling of her mother.

Other evidence suggested there was no indication that Mrs. Little had pneumonia or that she was in pain.

Martin:

Medicare Cost Shocks Ottawa

By IAN STREET
Colonist Legislative Reporter
Health Minister Eric Martin on his return from medical-care talks in Ottawa Thursday predicted that first areas of expanded coverage would be for mental and TB patients.

But there are indications that even in these fields, forerunners of the proposed Canada-wide medicare scheme, there would be a delay of some 18 months.

The minister said there was evidence at the conference that the federal government is shocked by the costs involved in the medicare proposal.

$52,000,000 ANNUALLY

Mr. Martin said the estimated cost to Ottawa of introducing a scheme for mental and TB patients alone is estimated at some $52,000,000 a year.

This week's conference of provincial health ministers, to be followed in a few months by another of provincial premiers with Prime Minister Pearson on medicare, was of a purely exploratory nature. "No commitments were made by either side," said Mr. Mar-

New 'Garden' for Whale?

When the mountain won't come to Mohammed. . . .

Charles White of the Oak Bay Undersea Garden had cause to remember the old quotation today as he contemplated his final hope for acquiring Vancouver's captive killer whale—to build another Undersea Garden in Vancouver.

Mr. White returned to Victoria Thursday after a fruitless attempt to persuade the whale's captor, Dr. Murray Newman, to part with his prize pet.

"It's no use," said Mr. White. "They want the whale to stay in Vancouver, close to UBC."

But refusing to give up completely, Mr. White immediately began mulling over the possibility that he might—emphasis on the "might"—get the whale for a garden in Vancouver.

"It would be close enough for them to study," he pointed out, "so I can't see any objection to such a scheme. But the whale is the key."

"If we could get Moby Doll, I'm quite sure we could find a site. The Jericho pen isn't good enough for a permanent home. It's small, and some of the piles are rotting, and the worst feature of all is that the water is muddy."

"There are sites further out that would have clear water, suitable for another Undersea Garden."

He estimated it would cost more than $150,000, but said he would have little difficulty in finding backers for the scheme.

Mr. White did not think that the present Vancouver aquarium, rated as one of the best on the continent, would hurt any garden in the city. "They would complement each other," he maintained. "People would want to compare them, and besides, they are different. They have fish from all over the world, whereas we would have only local fish, but then we've got a bit of a show as well—skindivers, and of course the whale."

"We wouldn't be deserting

Victoria; it would be just simple expansion. Any successful business seeks to expand."

Back in Vancouver, Dr. Newman was hoping that he could move the whale to the new pen today—and he admitted that they still aren't sure about its sex.

The question should be settled once and for all when the whale is at Jericho Beach, where a diver will go down in a steel cage to take a close look.

The big mammal seemed to be progressing satisfactorily towards good health, since it gulped two more large salmon on Thursday.

Provincial Switch Rapped

Winter Works Plan 'Pulls Plug' on City

Blame the Birds

Ods Bodkins! Nylon Rooves?

The birds are bothering Mrs. Rosina Lane. And if Anne Hathaway were alive, they'd be bothering her too.

They're nibbling away nonchalantly at the roof of the Anne Hathaway cottage replica at the Olde England Inn, one of Victoria's favorite tourist attractions.

Of course, Anne—wife of William Shakespeare—had the same problem too. But then she could always call in a thatcher to mend the roof.

But thatchers are hard to come by these days. When the cottage was originally built, Mrs. Lane and her husband Sam had to have a thatcher flown out from England to do the roof. He used 13 acres of wheat. It was a costly job—about $40,000 all in all.

"I hear they have had the same trouble with the original Hathaway cottage in Stratford-on-Avon."

"They varnished the thatch, but that didn't work. So now they use sheets of nylon to keep the birds off. I may have to do the same."

"I think I can do a temporary repair job myself," she said. "But if the birds keep coming, I'll have to get some varnish and nylon sheets."

A "plug-pulling" provincial government plan which could "mean the end" of Victoria's winter works program was strongly protested by city council on Thursday.

The municipal affairs department edict, which Mayor R. B. Wilson described as arbitrary and poorly thought out, restricts provincial assistance to 50 per cent of work done by people who have been on welfare for three months.

Ald. A. W. Toone pointed out that the city stood to lose $110,298 under the restriction—a loss large enough to place more than one of the city's projects in jeopardy.

Council passed two motions, one asking the government to reconsider the plan and the other protesting and pointing out damage its implementation could do to Victoria.

It was a most extraordinary procedure, said Mayor Wilson. The government must have known that the city's projects had all been planned well in advance. To pull the plug on the city after the budget had been set and money allocated was most awkward.

Had the city been advised of the government's intentions before the budget was set provision could have been made for the loss which the plan will inevitably mean for the city.

But to change the rules in the middle of the game was completely unfair.

Only last year, said Ald. Toone, the provincial government exhorted the municipalities to plan their winter works program well in advance.

"This is exactly what we did," said the alderman, "and now look what happens. It is most unjust."

'COULD MEAN END'

"This backing out on the part of the government could just mean the end of our whole winter works program," said Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow. He cited the reconstruction of the police station as one of the several projects planned by the city as part of the winter works program.

"It is a completely ridiculous situation," said Ald. Austin Curtis, citing the fact that under the government plan only nine men in Victoria were eligible for employment.

MUCH DISTURBED

Whoever came up with this one just hadn't thought it through, said Mayor Wilson. He said that he had been in touch with the executive of the Union of B.C. Municipalities and they were very much disturbed by the implications of the scheme.

Pavilion, Pool In Works

A new pavilion and wading pool at Windsor Park and expansion of Oak Bay tennis facilities are among proposals for the future according to Oak Bay parks committee chairman Alex Hendry.

Mr. Hendry outlined these particular projects in a talk to the Oak Bay Kiwanis Club at the Oak Bay Beach Hotel Thursday.

He estimated that a wading pool would cost $3,000, a Windsor Park pavilion $25,000, and that tennis courts would cost another $2,300.

Mr. Hendry also mentioned that another possible project would be development of Uplands Park, but he stressed that this should not involve drainage of the area but rather the simple installation of gravel walks.

Humpty Victim Again

Licence Loss Problem For Visitor to B.C.

If a non-B.C. resident accidentally loses his driving licence in this province, he must either wait until his own home area sends him a duplicate or he must take out a B.C. licence—and pay the full fee.

This situation came to light Thursday when Joe Hess of Clyde, Alta., lost his wallet while swimming at the Crystal Garden.

He applied for a temporary permit at the Motor Vehicle Branch but was informed that he would either have to take out another licence—for B.C.—or wait for Alberta to mail a duplicate to him.

Luckily for Mr. Hess, his wife drives—but his brother-in-law, Norman Crosswell of 1145 Union, feels that this is pretty shoddy treatment for a visitor to the province.

MR. AND MRS. P. D. ROTHE

—Doug Yates.

In North Vancouver

Uncle Officiates

Of interest in Victoria is the recent marriage of Margaret Lillian Lawson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon H. Lawson, North Vancouver, and Mr. Paul Desmond Rothe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Rothe, 941 Island Road, Victoria.

The wedding took place in Highlands United Church, North Vancouver, with Rev. E. Rands and Rev. Kermit Eutin, bride's uncle from Neville, Sask., officiating at the double-ring ceremony.

Miss Jean Boyd of Victoria sang the Lord's Prayer during the candlelight wedding.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in an exquisite silk organza gown highlighted with a Sabrina neckline, accented with sparkling array of sequins and pearls. The redingote effect skirt, also accented with sequins and pearls, swept into a full chapel train. The bride's shoulder-length veil misted from a crown of sequins and pearls centred with a large silk organza rose.

Matron of honor Mrs. Bob Skone was in pink organza gown with a chantilly lace panel insert which extended to hemline in back. The bride's cousins, the Misses Mary-Lou Jenkinson, Portland, Ore., Betty Anne and Alice Eutin, Neville, Sask., were gowned alike in pink lace trimmed dresses and wore matching Kate Greenaway style bonnets.

Flowergirl, little Caryl Eutin, cousin of the bride, wore a similarly styled frock and carried a basket of marguerites.

Mr. Hugh Rothe was best man for his brother, Mr. Patrick Harkness and Mr. David Harkness were ushers.

Mr. Fred Rummel proposed the toast to the bride at a reception which followed at the Canyon Gardens. A hand embroidered heirloom cloth, belonging to bride's grandmother, Mrs. W. R. Jenkinson, covered the head table centred with a cake decorated with pink and silver bells.

For travelling the bride changed into a three-piece white wool suit with pink accessories. Following their honeymoon through the interior of the province Mr. and Mrs. Rothe will make their home in Victoria.

Mr. and Mrs. P. D. Rothe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Reid of Kelowna, and Mr. Maurice Lancaster, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lancaster of Penrith, Cumberland, England.

Given in marriage by her father the bride was in a floor-length gown of white peau de soie, fashioned on classic lines. A seed pearl crown held her bouffant veil and she carried pink sweetheart roses.

The Misses Margaret and Janet Reid were attendants for their sister. They wore pale pink peau de soie gowns and carried Garnet sweetheart roses.

Mr. Marius Enthoven of Vancouver was best man.

Following the reception held at the Rosemead Avenue home of the bride's parents, the newlyweds left for a motor trip to Montreal where they will sail on the Holland American liner Rhyndam for a honeymoon in England.

Guests from Victoria were Mr. and Mrs. P. Clarke, Mr. R. A. Hale, Mr. D. Clarke and Miss Frances Shaw.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Some lovely, socially prominent friends of ours are heartbroken. Their daughter is being married in haste because she had the misfortune to go out with a terrible young man who took her to a wild beach party, got her drunk and then had his way with her. The baby is expected in November. The girl is only 17 and the boy is 22.

Will you please say something about older men who ply young innocent girls with liquor and ruin their lives? In my opinion such men should be put in jail. What do you think?—F.L.P.

Dear F.L.P.: I have discussed this subject in the column repeatedly, but my ideas do not square with yours so you've skipped past those columns.

NOBODY gets anybody else drunk. EVERYBODY gets himself drunk — unless of course he is tied up and someone pours the liquor down his throat.

A girl who is so stupid that she would drink herself into a state of senselessness must accept responsibility for what ever happens to her after that.

Dear Ann Landers: I never laughed so hard as when I read what you wrote about school nurses. Let me tell you how it looks from the students' point of view.

If a school nurse ever sent a kid home because he complained about not feeling well you can be sure the kid was more dead than alive — he probably suffered a heart attack. Every student I know who ever went to the school nurse was asked first if he had a test scheduled in the next hour. If the answer was "Yes," the kid was ordered back to the class even if he had to be carried on a stretcher.

And then there is aspirin and green soap. School nurses seem to think aspirin and green soap will cure anything from an ingrown toenail to a broken neck.

So please get with it, Ann, and don't tell mothers that the school nurse will send their sick kids home. It won't happen.—B.L.

Dear B.L.: Too bad the school nurses are onto all the tricks, isn't it? One thing you kids don't dig is this: Every school nurse was once in high school — as a student.

Dear Ann Landers: Our 14-year-old was totally deaf to my pleas to hang up her clothes and put things where they belonged. I was beside myself whenever guests were expected. I used to lock Joan's bedroom door to make sure no one would wander in by mistake and see the mess.

A friend told me how she solved the problem with her teen-ager and I'd like to pass it on because it worked for me, too. I took the pillows off Joan's bed, tossed them on the floor, rolled the blanket into a ball, took the sheets half off and turned the mattress crossway against the springs. The room looked as if a twister had hit.

When Joan came home and saw the bed she came running down the stairs shrieking, "mother, what happened to my room?" I replied, "nothing, I decided the bed ought to look like the rest of the room."

I've never again had to speak to her about keeping her bedroom in order.—B.B.C.

Dear Mrs.!: Lovely idea, and glad it worked in your house. I'm afraid in some homes, the teen-ager would scarcely notice the difference.

Doll-like little Lexi Bate, pictured with her mother, Mrs. H. K. Bate and 13-year-old sister, Debbie, had her first summer holiday this year at the home of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Bate, Towner Park Road.

Mrs. Bate and Lexi, who is 11½ months old, have now returned to their home in San Francisco. Debbie and older brother, Ian, are staying for a longer holiday with their grandparents.

Lesley Spooner Feted

Miss Lesley Spooner, whose marriage to Mr. Hugh John McCullough of Ottawa takes place Saturday, has been guest of honor at a number of showers and parties given recently by friends.

At a strawberry social, the Songsters, of which the bride-elect was a member, presented her with an electric toaster.

A surprise shower was given by Miss Barbara Nelson, who is to be the maid of honor, in the McNeil Street home of Mrs. T. Curteis. Corsages were presented to the bride-elect and her mother, Mrs. L. W. Spooner. Gifts were concealed in a decorated basket. Other guests included Mrs. Curteis and the Misses Sandra Corbett, Pam Olds, Linda Mills, Shirley Hastings, Barbara Howe, Sharon Frewing, Colleen Bach, Gwen Nelson, Linda Cracknell, Kathleen Spooner and Janine Spooner.

Wilson, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. G. Wilson Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. W. Hastings.

Mrs. L. Baird gave a shower in her Minto Street home for Miss Spooner. Gifts were in a clothes basket decorated in yellow with miniature umbrellas. Pink rosebud corsages were presented to the bride-elect and her mother by Miss Brenda Baird. Others present were Mrs. N. McFadyen and Miss Connie McFadyen, aunt and cousin of the bride-elect, who recently arrived from Winnipeg for the wedding; Mrs. R. Martin, Mrs. L. Nelson, Mrs. A. Dunstied, Mrs. B. Sturrock, Mrs. D. Holstrand, Mrs. E. Bent, Mrs. B. Shipclark, Mrs. F. Corbett, and the Misses Julie Taylor, Diane Martin, Karen Shipclark, Sandra Corbett, Kathleen and Janine Spooner.

Salvation Army Citadel was setting for another shower when more than 80 members of the corps gathered to honor Miss Spooner. Gifts were in a decorated wishing well and the hostesses were Mrs. E. Bent and Miss R. Parilly.

On the same evening a no-host stag party was given by the Equimall Salvation Army Corps in honor of the groom-elect. An electric toaster was presented.

Antonelli Introduces Spare Tire

FLORENCE (Reuters) — A "spare tire" waistline was the chief feature of a collection by Maria Antonelli presented Wednesday on the fifth day of the Italian autumn-winter fashion show.

Antonelli marked the waist of almost all her models with two parallel seams three to six inches apart. The section in between was gathered to encircle the waist like an inflated tire.

PERSONAL MENTION

Mrs. Janet Hockley, who is leaving here to reside in Cloverdale, B.C., Mrs. Margaret Sharples who will leave on Aug. 4 for a seven-week visit with her family in England, and Miss Judy McLeod who also leaves on Aug. 4 for a seven-week tour of Europe, were honored by fellow employees of the Bank of Montreal Current Accounts department at a dinner party at the Net Loft. Co-workers attending were Mrs. D. Bennett, Mrs. S. Olivier, Mrs. S. Gledhill, Mrs. A. Stokes, Mrs. G. Dennison, and the Misses B. Munday, G. Deeks, A. Lavertu, Fay Brabazon and M. Ridley.

Wedding in Vancouver

The forthcoming marriage is announced between Barbara Mary Urquhart, daughter of Mrs. G. Stanley Urquhart, Alton, Hampshire, England, and the late Mr. Urquhart, to Mr. Ronald Neil Paver, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Eric N. Paver, 2561 Cavendish Avenue, Victoria. The wedding will be held Aug. 15 at 2:30 p.m. in Kitsilano United Church, Vancouver.

Winnipeg Professor Here

Professor Graham L. Shanks of Winnipeg is in town visiting his sister-in-law, Mrs. Lorrie Hallman of 1979 Watson Street.

North Vancouver Wedding

Victorians attending the wedding of Margaret Lillian Lawson and Mr. Paul Desmond Rothe at Highlands United Church in North Vancouver were Mr. and Mrs. Walter Rothe, Mr. and Mrs. Bjornson and Mrs. Helen Hargrave. Other out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Jenkinson, Miss Mary-Lou Jenkinson and Mr. Mark Rogers, all of Portland, Ore.; Rev. and Mrs. Kermit Euth, and the Misses Betty Anne, Alice and Caryl Euth, Neville, Sask.; Mr. Hugh Rothe, Burns Lake, B.C.; Mr. Pat Harkness, Revelstoke; Mrs. Craig Campbell, Hamilton, Ont.; Dr. and Mrs. A. W. Mooney and family, Vanderhoof, B.C.

Here for Wedding

In Victoria for the Williams-Butler wedding at St. George's the Martyr Church were Mr. and Mrs. R. N. Eyles and family, and Mrs. F. Oldham, all of Vancouver; Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Winter, Regina, Sask.

Colorado Visitors

Mr. and Mrs. Lowell B. Hodges and 19-month-old daughter, Leanne, of Colorado Springs, Colo., are house guests at the Cornwall Street home of Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Chalmers. They are also visiting with their mothers.

Mrs. M. E. Sprinkling and Mrs. M. B. Hodges, both of Victoria. Next week the Hodges go to Parksville for a visit before returning to Colorado Springs where Mr. Hodges is an instructor in the International Typographical Union's new school for printing.

RETURN HOME

UCLUELET — Two Ucluelet families have returned home after trips to Alberta.

They are Mr. and Mrs. Remi Audette, their daughters Joanne and Durice and son Remi, and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Poole and their daughters Gill and Gayle.

AMY By Mace and Tippitt

"Sure he knows how to shake hands, but he's sorta choosy."

London Designers

Stick to Trousers

LONDON (Reuters) — London's designers showed their determination to let women wear the trousers, as showings of autumn and winter collections began here Wednesday.

But at least one, the younger set's daring designer John Cavanagh, also stressed feminine curves, with several breathtakingly low-cut gowns, and one daringly slashed at the bosom. One of Cavanagh's short tunic evening dresses, in the zizzling pink he used frequently in his collection, had a neckline which revealed so much, it had to be strongly boned for safety.

The trouser-fancying designers, Michael and Roy Couturier Hardy Amies, provided matching skirts for girls who might be, at least part of the time, too self-conscious to be seen in pants.

Amies introduced his young models in checked blazers over matching narrow, tailored trousers, and jauntily-checked trilby hats. With each outfit he provided a quick-change alternative of a matching pleated skirt.

Honored At Party

CHEMAMINUS — Before her marriage last Saturday, Miss Marian Halme was the guest of honor at several showers in Chemainus. One was given by the women of the United Church in the Christian education building with Mrs. Harry James as hostess. Gifts were presented in a decorated container formed of two TV tables, which were gifts themselves. The nursing staff of the Chemainus hospital were hostesses at a second shower in the home of Mrs. A. Constable.

Garden Notes

The Late, Late Show

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

"The Meadow Saffron or Colchicum bringeth forth leaves in February, seeds in May, and flowers in September; which is a thing cleane contrary to all other plants whatsoever, for that they doe first floure and then seed; but this Saffron seedeth first, and four months after bringeth forth floures.

The roots of Meadow Saffron are very hurtfull to the stomache, and being eaten, they kill by choking as Mushromes do. These which have eaten it must drinke the milke of a cow, or else death presently ensueth."

—Gerard's Herbal, 1595

The colchicums are not everybody's cup of tea. These bulbs, often incorrectly called the autumn crocus, are difficult to accommodate in the small garden, for the plants make an immense mass of leaves in the spring, smothering any small plants nearby.

These leaves start to fade and take on a disreputable appearance in June, just when the garden should be looking its best, and you can't cut down this mass of vegetation, either, for the leaves must be left to die down naturally if the bulbs are to bloom in the fall.

If you have lots of room, though, and can devise some means of concealing them through their untidy June period, they pay substantial dividends in late September and October when the leafless flowers are in full splendor. No other bulbous plant can beat them for a late show of color.

The bulbs are best planted as early in August as you can obtain them, and they MUST go into the ground promptly, for they will sprout and even bloom in the bag if you delay. They like a rich, well-drained loam soil and will tolerate partial shade. The best depth of planting is four inches, with the bulbs spaced six inches apart, and they bloom most freely when allowed to remain undisturbed for some years.

If you want more bulbs in a hurry, though, they can be lifted every second year, preferably between Aug. 1 and 15, and the clumps divided and replanted immediately. Colchicums can be grown from seed, of course, but it is a rather unsatisfactory business for the home gardener as the plants take anywhere from three to five years to reach flowering size, and the slugs and snails seem to be particularly fond of the young seedlings.

The plant breeders of Holland have been hard at work developing this family of bulbs, and without question, the finest is a particularly lovely hybrid called Water Lily, making a very large and fully double flower in rosy mauve. This one is expensive, running around $1.25 per bulb. But Lilac Queen, Violet Queen and The Giant are all good, and are available at about $5 per dozen.

The bulb catalogues will often stress the fact that these big bulbs will bloom indoors if left in a saucer, unplanted, without soil or water. Grown in this way, a colchicum makes an interesting novelty for the schoolroom or for a shut-in, but the flower is far from beautiful—a sickly, washed-out shade.

Luftovers

The Little World of SHEILAH GRAHAM

LONDON (NANA)—Judy Garland's two children with Sid Luft are to join her in London this week, according to Judy. I hope this is correct because it would mean that she can settle her problem with Sid. Judy has rented a house in Hampstead for a year with Mark Herron. When she was asked by a reporter, "Are you married?", Judy replied, "Are you kidding?" But she does plan to marry Mark—when she gets a legal divorce from Luft. No films on her schedule, but she wants to work in London and is hoping to star on stage in a West End play.

A young designer here, Mary Quant, has single-handedly changed the look in Englishwomen's clothes. It was Mary who introduced the high boot last fall. Paris copied, then New York. Michelle Morgan actually comes to London every four months from Paris to stock up on dresses and suits. They are less frilly here than anywhere else. And much cheaper.

I'm not sure America will ever get Tony Randall and his wife back. They love and are loved in London, where the hot polloi is surprised to find an actor who is an intellectual. Ditto for Vincent Price, who is always being interviewed about his art collection and his horror films.

Jerry Lewis may like to know that his picture The Nutty Professor, was his biggest hit in France. Especially with the avant-garde group who felt it was something new—comedy with a Chaplinesque touch. It's funny because in New York the avant-garde lap up anything that is French regardless of how mystifying the pictures are, and some I have never been able to fathom.

I have had a lot of discussions lately about whether actors should direct their own pictures. The consensus of opinion is that they should not. "No actor can really have a third eye," said director Lewis Gilbert whose next movie is Gordon of Khartoum with Sir Laurence Olivier and Burt Lancaster. "As an actor you are obsessed with your own role. As a director you must see the whole picture." Actor-directors of recent pictures—Frank Sinatra on None but the Brave, Laurence Harvey with The Ceremony, also Marion Brando in One-Eyed Jacks. The two latter have been released. They were failures. I hear mixed reports on the Sinatra picture.

PRICE RANDALL.
... Their Brains Impress Londoners

Etiquette

By STAN DELAPLANE

A new etiquette book has arrived—697 pages of Who does What to Who. And Where and When.

This leaves out the essential journalistic "Why." But reasons are not included in etiquette books. Yours not to reason why, Claude. Just watch the hostess and pick up the right fork.

I first got into the etiquette business as a Boy Scout. "A Scout is chivalrous."

We did not know what chivalrous was. But the scoutmaster explained it was like helping old ladies across the street.

Therefore, we went down and helped old ladies across the street. Old ladies about 35. We helped even though some of them got mad when we said: "We are Boy Scouts and are helping old ladies across streets."

Well, what is with etiquette and public life? That is a good question. And the etiquette book has the answers.

You are Mrs. Walter James Farlingame. Walter has been coming home with some ridiculous story that he got that lip-stick on his collar in a crowded bus. Time for a change.

You should then type an etiquette-fresh statement for the reporters:

"Mrs. Walter James Farlingame regrets to announce that she is leaving Friday for her home in Palm Beach to institute divorce proceedings against Mr. Farlingame. A separation agreement has been reached."

Now this etiquette may be fresher than ordinary etiquette. Due to new active roll-on ingredients.

It stands the test of politeness. But will it withstand the test of journalistic curiosity? Reporters are not encouraged to come home with this kind of meagre information.

When I was researching social splits for the dailies, I was told to come home with Who, What, Where, When, Why—and How.

"Did he beat you like a gong, lady?"

One lady hauled off and hit me with a mesh handbag full of keys and compacts. I have the scar to this day.

However, a number of ladies on the split-level are delighted to fink on Walter.

"Beat me? He clobbered me like a home run!"

You can leave the "Why" out of etiquette books. Issue polite statements. But the etiquette lady must brush up on newspaper practices.

What kind of separation agreement? "Nothing more need be said after this statement," says the book.

No? Well, is there another lady involved in this, lady? Who was the lady I saw Walter with last night, lady? Who gets the "His" and "Her" towels? Not to mention the house at Palm Beach.

There is a great deal to be said. For a great deal will be asked.

While the etiquette books are at it, they better get it right. Shorten up the sentences.

Once I turned in a story that "Mrs. Farlingame will institute divorce proceedings against Mr. Farlingame."

The city editor put a fat pencil through "Mr. Farlingame." "She isn't going to divorce anybody else, is she?" he asked nastily. As a second thought, he knocked out words like "institute" and "proceedings."

He added a comma on the end. And after it, he put in—"she said."

He did not claim to know etiquette. But he said he did know women and libel.

Precocious Victor Follows John

OTTAWA (UPI)—Former prime minister Diefenbaker and a boy who says he will some day be prime minister are mapping out strategy for the general election of the year 2,000.

Mr. Diefenbaker hasn't yet named Victor Deschenes of Toronto as his successor, but he was so impressed with the boy during a Toronto meeting that he invited him to Ottawa for a visit.

Victor, a great admirer of Mr. Diefenbaker "for years now," and a staunch Conservative—at the age of 12—says he will some day be prime minister.

"I can name at least 10 people who will say that," said the dark-haired, cocksure youngster, who has already had political experience.

He worked in the Conservative committee rooms for Toronto lawyer Arthur Maloney, former parliamentary secretary to Conservative Labor Minister Michael Starr.

Mr. Diefenbaker met him at a party in Mr. Maloney's honor in Toronto a short time ago and was so impressed with the boy's conviction that he will be prime minister, he invited him to the capital.

"He asked me to come down to show me what's going on, so that I'll know," said Victor, who packs more confidence into five feet and 12 years than most men do in twice the height and age.

"Sure I'm going to be prime minister. I'll do it by stages," the grade "A" student said modestly. First he will become a lawyer. Then he will run for Parliament.

Victor will be of age to run for Parliament in 1981; and if he allows himself a decent interval for experience, he could be running for prime minister in the year 2,000.

He says he'll run as a Conservative. "I'm no Grit."

Victor has some pretty positive opinions.

The vote shouldn't go to 18-year-olds. "They're not mature enough."

He doesn't like the new flag. "I'm with Mr. Diefenbaker on the Red Ensign."

Like Diefenbaker, Victor once sold newspapers. "But that was a long time ago. I was seven years old then."

But White Ones Just As Good

Brown Eggs Most Popular

LONDON (CP)—In Gulliver's Travels Jonathan Swift satirized 18th-century manners with a description of the bitter rivalry between people who opened their soft-boiled eggs at the big end and those who opened them at the small end.

In modern Britain there has long been an equally irrational rivalry between people who prefer brown eggs and people who prefer white eggs.

Recent reports indicate the brown-egg eaters are winning hands down. They even received royal support when the Queen told an Edinburgh women's meeting: "I always think brown eggs look so much nicer."

Scientists treat the brown-egg trend with scorn. Tests show white eggs are just as nutritious as brown and cheaper to produce because white-egg-laying chickens lay more eggs a year than do brown-egg-laying chickens.

But men like Cyril Thorner, whose Yorkshire Farm is the largest chick producer in the world, cannot afford to go against the majority view. This year 26,000,000 of the 33,000,000 chicks the firm sends out will lay brown eggs.

The firm spends about £250,000 a year on research trying to make brown eggs even browner. By 1970, Thorner figures, more than 90 per cent of the eggs in the shop will be a delectably meaningless brown. But by that time, of course, the white-egg eaters will probably be in ascendency.

Unique Wooden Bowls Gift of U.S. Scouts

Bowls of myrtlewood, a native wood of Oregon, were given to Lieutenant-Governor Pearkes and Mayor Wilson by the boys of Scout Troop 4 of Salem, Ore., during a recent Victoria visit.

The Oregon Scouts were guests of the 6th Arbutus Scouts. The 30 visitors camped at Albert Head and visited the Butchart Gardens, wax museum, Crystal Garden, Thunderbird Park, legislative buildings and Thetis Lake.

Arthur Dowell

Tribute Paid Late Alderman

City council paid a standing tribute to the late Ald. Arthur Dowell on Thursday.

In passing a resolution of condolence to the late alderman's family, members of council observed two minutes silence.

The desk occupied by Ald. Dowell was draped in black and held a bouquet of white flowers.

"I think," said Mayor R. B. Wilson, "that each of us is beginning to realize just how much we are going to miss Arthur Dowell."

In lieu of flowers, council ordered that $100 be donated to the Conquer Cancer Fund.

City Offer Welcomed In Meat Store Strike

Council's offer to assist in any way in settlement of the long-standing strike at Alberta Meat Market has been welcomed both by union and management.

More Phones

OTTAWA (CP) — Telephones operated by 14 of the largest telephone companies in Canada rose five per cent in number in 1964 to 6,288,200 from 5,972,976 in 1962.

"If a new approach can be found we shall be very pleased to avail ourselves of your good offices," stated the letter from the store manager.

Alberni Strike Cut B.C.'s Forest Output

The strike that closed down the lumber industry in the Alberni Valley from May 19 to July 10 has been blamed for a decline in some areas of the forest industry reported in the latest monthly bulletin of B.C. business activity.

Production of pulp in May was down six per cent from May 1963, and down 11 per cent from the previous month. Production of other papers and paperboards fell 10 per cent in May from a year earlier.

The output for May of newsprint was up 12 per cent, however, and plywood production was up 12 per cent in June over the same months in 1963.

The quantity of lumber sawn during April was 11 per cent higher than a year earlier.

Trade Minister Ralph Lof-

mark reported most sectors of the business economy in B.C. registered appreciable gains in April and May. Despite some declines, he said, 1964 so far has been a year of strong growth in most fields.

Coal mining showed an eight per cent gain in May over the previous year. Crude oil production rose 8.5 per cent, natural gas production was up 7.2

Italians Swelter

ROME (AP) — A blazing sun scorched much of Italy Wednesday, carrying the country's hottest heat wave in 30 years into its ninth day. Four persons died of sunstroke.

per cent, gold production up seven per cent, lead production up 8.3 per cent, all in April over the same month in 1963.

Activity in the construction industry continued at a very high level and the number of persons employed in June reached $162,300,000, the report said, reflecting B.C.'s prosperity with a 10 1/2 per cent increase over the same period in 1963.

"slow" gin:

What it is, and what it isn't.

"Slow" gin is a London Dry Gin—not a Sloe Gin. Most unlike Sloe Gin—which is flavoured with sloes instead of juniper berries—our "slow" gin is very, very dry.

Its listed name is Burnett's Sterling. We call it "slow" because we make it slowly.

Most gins on the market are mass-produced. They run from modern, mammoth stills in oceans. But our Sterling is distilled in small, unhurried batches. What limits the amount—and sets the pace—is our little old copper Pot Stills.

The one you see on the right is more than 100 years old. We brought it from England in the 1920s—when we imported Burnett's complete distillery.

By today's standards, our old Pot Stills are miniatures—and slow pokes. But the men who mind them know them as a good cook knows her seasoned pots and pans.

Watching, sipping, tasting, they let Sterling take its time. They believe that nothing excellent was ever turned out in a hurry.

We'd save money, of course, by switching to mass-producing equipment. But our Sterling Gin would cease to be a "slow" gin.

And it wouldn't taste the same.

Winning Contract

By HOWARD SCHENKEN and RICHARD L. FREY

More contracts are blown on the opening lead than in any other phase of the game, but sometimes it can't be helped. In an expert game, West's fate was written in the stars from the beginning.

South is slightly too strong for one no trump and most experts would bid one club. Over a neutral response this would leave a slight problem as to whether to bid spades on the next round or jump in no trump.

South was playing the Schenken Club, in which the one club opening shows 17 points upwards or a strong distributional hand. His partner was just short of the nine points needed for a positive response. South had no problem at this point, since in the system a one no trump rebid shows an above-minimum hand, and responder can now bid a Stayman two clubs if he is interested in a major-suit contract. Thus the spade fit was located.

The first trick was won by the heart ace, the second by the heart queen. A third heart put declarer in to finesse dummy's trump jack. East automatically dropping the nine. (Had East not done so, declarer's automatic play on the next round would have been the ace, felling West's king and losing no tricks in the suit.) After the play of the nine, declarer thought it safer to re-enter his hand and lead the queen; this would gain if East had held the nine alone or the bare ten-nine.

When East followed small to the second trump lead, South conceded him the third trump, won the club return, cashed another high club and ruffed a club. He now needed the diamond finesse for his contract.

Declarer figured out the right answer. West had led away from an unsupported suit, despite the fact that he knew South had an all-around strong hand. If West could find no better lead, the probable explanation was that he had honors in every suit. Declarer therefore played him for the diamond queen and made the game.

Puck, Bottom Not Enough

By IAN ARROL
The most impressive feature of the University of Victoria's presentation of A Midsummer Night's Dream was the overflow audience, both opening night, Wednesday and Thursday.

The most depressing feature was the heat in the Young Building auditorium.

The most charming feature was the quaint old-world performance with harpsichord and woodwind of God Save the Queen at the start of the performance.

BUT THEN...
The performance itself? For those who know and love Shakespeare well, a recitation of the catechism is always enjoyable. Comparisons can be made with other performances, and recollections of other Shakespearean occasions give additional dividends.

For those who have yet to break through into the mind and world of Shakespeare, the Victoria performance is not adequate.

MUST BE CONFIDENT
Each player must first be immersed in that mind and that world and must feel confident in his role to make the instruction and entertainment of Shakespeare contagious.

Otherwise, there is no link between 16th-century England with its style of language and its rhetoric and a 20th-century mind. The stage speech and the gestures seem merely stage and not world.

MUST GROW
The potential is there among the players, but there needs to be many more performances and much more criticism before the actors and actresses can grow to be competent Shakespeare performers.

Community interest has certainly proven itself to be substantial and Victoria may well be prepared to sustain many more efforts in the future. But the interest should be critical as well as superficially encouraging.

DESIGNS GOOD
The designs by Bill West were excellent, both from the standpoint of stage technique and the wooded atmosphere they were intended to convey.

Automobile Pioneer Dies Here

Chester L. McLaughlin, 441 Victoria, a resident of Victoria for the past 23 years, died in Royal Jubilee Hospital Thursday. He was 87.

Ontario-born Mr. McLaughlin once operated the Winnipeg firm of Leonard and McLaughlin, which handled the first Cadillac cars to be brought to western Canada.

He is survived by four nieces, Mrs. Rita Ovas of Victoria, Mrs. Vera McRae, Mrs. Marjory Livesley and Mrs. Margaret Whitbread, all of Winnipeg, and one nephew, Lloyd McLaughlin, also of Winnipeg.

He was a life member of Ancient Monument A.F. and A.M., a member of the Shrine Khartum Temple in Winnipeg, and of Victoria Rotary and Oak Bay Golf Clubs.

Funeral services will be held in Sands Chapel at a date to be announced.

Ellensburg Visitors Here Today

A group of about 40 American senior 4-H members from Ellensburg, Wash., will arrive today for a brief visit at Victoria, 4-H supervisor on southern Vancouver Island, Ken Jameson, announced in Duncan.

They will be billeted with 4-H members in the Greater Victoria area, and the special program for the American guests will include group discussions, visits to the grounds of Government House, the Woodseas Gardens, and the Woodwyn Farms at Saanich. A beach party in the evening will conclude the event.

And much of the evening was fun, as fun it must be with Bottom and his companions and Puck and his mischief.

Midsummer Night's Dream will be presented again Saturday, and July 31 and Aug. 7. The presentation tonight in the Young Building is another performance of Richard III.

Scholarship For Victorian

A Victoria man was among six students awarded $2,000 scholarships for post-graduate study in highway engineering by the Canadian Good Roads Association.

Frank Berry, 35, will study at McGill University in Montreal. Other Canadian winners, and the schools where they will study are Oscar Maranzin of Winnipeg, University of California, and Garry W. Hollingshead of Edmonton, University of Alberta.

Object of the scholarships is to ease the shortage of skilled highway engineers and technicians.

Students and Faculty Concert at Empress Tonight By Summer School of Music

The students and faculty of the Victoria Summer School of Music will present a concert at 8:15 p.m. in the Empress Hotel Ballroom.

The school faculty is headed by Dr. Clayton Hare and well-known pianist Dorothy Svetnam.

The student performers at tonight's concert come from widely-separated centres such as Minneapolis, Spokane, Toronto, Regina, Portland and Victoria. Many have outstanding awards for high achievement in their own states or provinces.

Marshall Johnson, 16-year-old violinist from Spokane, is concertmaster of the junior symphony orchestra in that city and has won top honors at the Portland music festival.

Michael Adamson, who will appear both as soloist and conductor, is a native of Victoria. He is a scholarship student at the University of Portland and a member of the Portland Symphony. With Carol Cottrell of Portland he will play Brahms' Sonatasatz.

Other soloists include Ian Franklin of Victoria, Gregory Smith of Medford, Oregon, Elizabeth Muller of Portland, and James Lennox of Minneapolis. The program includes a variety of spirited and rarely heard works by Britten, Mahler, Ravel, Delius and the Canadian composer, Kenneth Peacock.

Two Suspects Picked Up; Hostage Safe

BULLETIN

HUNTSVILLE, Ont. (CP)—Two armed men being sought in connection with a bank holdup in the Ottawa Valley community of Cobden, Ont., were picked up near here by police Thursday night.

A police officer said Mrs. Jean Millar, taken by the men as a hostage when they fled the bank earlier Thursday was reported to be safe.

CODDEN, Ont. (CP)—The car in which three armed men were believed to have fled from a bank robbery with a woman hostage was found abandoned about four miles from the scene of the crime Thursday night.

$2,000,000 In Gems Monaco Loss

MONTE CARLO (UPI)—Five masked bandits firing machine guns and pistols raided a jewelry store near the Monte Carlo Casino Thursday and fled with jewels valued at about $2,000,000.

The robbers shot a policeman in the leg as they ran to escape in a pickup truck. Jewels worth about $100,000 were recovered in the vehicle when it was found abandoned on a side street later.

Sanctions Likely For Cuba

WASHINGTON (AP)—The American foreign ministers conference appeared ready Thursday to slap diplomatic and trade sanctions on Cuba.

After intensive closed-door negotiations on the wording of a proposed resolution calling for sanctions, at least 13 countries, the required two-thirds majority of the 19 voting countries, were reported ready to vote for the Venezuelan - requested sanctions.

SANCTIONS OPPOSED

Mexico and Chile oppose the sanctions and the positions of Uruguay and Bolivia were uncertain. These countries still have diplomatic relations with Cuba.

The stand of Argentina, one of the largest of Latin American countries, also was uncertain. But it is believed Argentina will support the majority.

NOT EFFECTIVE

Argentina told the conference Thursday morning the proposed sanctions against Cuba "are not and will not be effective."

At the afternoon session the United States introduced three resolutions aimed at tightening the isolation of Cuba.

MUTUAL SURVEILLANCE

One resolution called for all members of the Organization of American States to:

"Co-operate in the establishment of systems of air, sea and land surveillance in the waters off their coasts and along their land boundaries in order to detect clandestine movements of."

Hit-Run Car Kills Boy

PRINCE GEORGE (CP)—David John Moore, 2½, was killed Thursday when struck by a car whose driver failed to stop.

The tot's mother, Mrs. John Moore, found her son lying on the road where he had been playing with friends in the Austin subdivision just north of this north central city.

RCPM began a door-to-door canvass for witnesses to the mishap in an effort to get a description of the car involved.

'Frugal Years' Rewarded

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Mrs. Ednah Capron Thursday won a $16,000,000 property settlement, believed one of the largest divorce settlements ever, and a divorce decree from rancher George Capron, her husband of 53 years.

Property involved is mostly in valuable land near Laguna Beach and an $85,000 Newport Beach home. Mrs. Capron charged her husband made her live frugally for 53 years.

TWO HUDDLE WEEK ON PLANE FLOATS

PRINCE RUPERT (CP)—Robert Gilroy and Max Portz faced certain death if they struck out in the glacier-fed waters of the Iskut River, so they huddled, drenched and bitterly cold, for eight days on the floats of their overturned Beaver aircraft.

In all that time they didn't have anything to eat and saw rescue aircraft fly past.

They told about it Thursday following their rescue. Gilroy spoke by telephone from Terrace, 95 miles inland from this north coast city and 200 miles south of the spot where their plane hit the river July 14.

TRIED FOR LANDING

The two prospectors were returning to their campsite at the junction of the Iskut and Inhini Rivers. They tried for a landing close to the site, trying to avoid the risk of taxing around snags.

"We hit a mud bank," Gilroy said.

FLOATED DOWNSTREAM

The plane floated downstream stopped upside down on a sand bar. Gilroy, 39, and Portz, 48, clambered onto the floats and there they remained through almost continuous rain for eight days.

WATER FRIGID

The Iskut, which flows through the Alaska Panhandle about 65 miles northwest of Stewart, was about three-quarters of a mile wide, its water close to 30 degrees.

"It would have meant death in two minutes if we had tried to strike out for shore," he said. "We counted as many as 14 planes flying over. That was the worst part of it."

CAMP DESERTED

A search was sparked Tuesday after Terrace pilot Doug Chappel flew supplies into their camp, found it deserted and noted the last entry in their diary was July 14.

They were spotted Wednesday, picked up and flown to Terrace by way of a mining camp and Stewart, B.C.

HAD GOOD SLEEP

"We were given lots of fruit juice and we both slept a long time," said Gilroy.

Neither lost much weight but Portz, a native of Rossland, caught a regular airlines flight Thursday for Vancouver for treatment of exposure. Gilroy, who is from Vancouver, said he will head north again as soon as he can.

Riots Go On

Wagner 'Too Late'

NEW YORK (AP)—White hecklers shouted epithets and threw eggs and garbage at a group of white and Negro pickets outside New York City's police headquarters Thursday.

But no new outbreaks of violence were reported in Harlem or the Bedford-Stuyvesant section of Brooklyn as darkness fell on the city, wracked on the five previous nights, by wild racial violence.

Negro leaders Thursday rejected Mayor Robert F. Wagner's blueprint for peace, and one condemned the police for "reckless and panicky violence" in suppressing the riots which have left one dead, 140 hurt, 478 arrested and 673 properties damaged.

TARGETS NOT HIT

The 200 pickets at Manhattan's police headquarters, representing the Congress of Racial Equality, were protected from 300 white hecklers by police barriers.

The police, including six off-

Province to Get Its Bank 'One Way or Another'

VANCOUVER (CP)—Premier Bennett said Thursday night he is not trying to threaten Canada's Senate, but British Columbia is going to have a bank one way or another.

Returning from Ottawa where he testified before the Senate Banking Committee on application for a charter for a bank of British Columbia the premier told interviewers he is still confident that the bank will get a federal charter, despite the committee's action in postponing a decision.

GO IT ALONE

He said he based his confidence partly on a series of talks he had with MPs of various parties just before he left Ottawa.

But, the premier said, if for some reason the Senate does not approve the charter, B.C. will go into the finance business one way or another. One way might be through establishment of treasury branches, such as those in Alberta. Another would be through trust companies.

This, he conceded, "would be second best and it will not be the complete answer to making B.C. a major financial centre of Canada. But it is a partial answer."

'CAN'T SIT BY'

"We cannot sit idly by and let the people of our province continue to be held back."

The premier stressed that he was well-treated by the Senate committee.

"I am not finding fault with the Senate," he said.

Laurentide Boss 'Surprised'

VANCOUVER (CP)—Peter Paul Saunders, president of Laurentide Finance Company, expressed surprise Thursday at a statement attributed to Premier Bennett that B.C. would go ahead with the Bank of British Columbia with or without parliamentary approval.

"I think he made a very good submission to Ottawa, but these things take time," he said.

"We've been there for several months—he only got there yesterday."

Card Belongs to Young Communist League

Heart Belongs to Baptists

MOSCOW (UPI)—The religious yearnings of a 16-year-old girl in this atheistic nation drew special attention Thursday in a newspaper article entitled "The one who has gone astray."

Komsomolskaya Pravda, the newspaper of the Young Communist League, published a letter from Nina K., of the Urals city of Sverdlovsk, and added editorially that it was sure she was not lost to Communism.

"The fact is I don't believe in people," Nina K. wrote. "I am a Young Communist League member and I am 16. . . I am a normal girl but at the same time I'm unusual. I'm a member of a sect."

"Yes, I'm a Baptist! Strange, isn't it?"

Nina went on, "Frankly, I don't consider myself a member of the Young Communist League. I have a Komsomol card . . . but my soul belongs to God."

"I don't want far away towns and construction sites . . . for what do I need the new lands?" (These are the accepted goals of good Young Communist Leaguers.)

"Father was a drunkard and mother was sick and all my brothers and sisters were crying all the time. My schoolmates looked on me with contempt and pity," Nina K. wrote.

"But here at church people met me with warmth and care. They were black, members of this sect . . . but they have and now I have too a great and pure belief—the belief in God. He will protect us."

"Let Komsomol members members pass me without greeting. Let them look upon me with contempt. Let them say behind my back the word they regard as an insult—Baptist."

"Let them. I don't need them . . . now I am praying . . . God is almighty," Nina said. "My brothers and sisters in God treat me very well. I believe them. And I believe God. Before, I thought people invented God to oppress each other and now I think you shouldn't invent God because he already exists."

"The only thing I don't know is what to do with my Komsomol card . . ."

In an editor's note the Communist newspaper said, "the very fact she wrote a letter to our newspaper shows this 16-year-old girl deeply feels the uncertainty of her position."

"The question of where she belongs is not yet decided and we are sure life itself will persuade her that religious dogmas are groundless . . ."

Faint Hope Remains Posties Won't Strike

Gunfire Flares Along Border

TEL AVIV, Jerusalem (Reuters)—A new flare-up on the Syria-Israel border was reported Thursday night. An Israeli army spokesman said Syrian armistice positions opened automatic fire on the Israeli frontier village of Almagor, near the point where the Jordan River flows in to the Sea of Galilee, and Israeli forces returned the fire.

LONDON (Reuters)—There was a glimmer of hope Thursday night that a country-wide strike by Britain's 123,000 postmen might be averted despite failure in last-minute attempts by the government to negotiate an agreement.

Further talks were scheduled today as the country's deliverers and sorters prepared to walk off their jobs at midnight Saturday night unless the government satisfies their wage demands.

Services Held For Two

Last rites were held Thursday for two Vancouver Island residents.

Requiem mass for former Port Alberni resident Harry Carson, 82, who died Tuesday in Victoria, was held at 9 a.m. in the Church of the Sacred Heart of Palmer Road.

Services for Mrs. Evelyn Whinnis of Salt Spring Island, who died Monday in Sidney, were held at 2 p.m. in St. George's Church in Ganges.

Duncan Pioneer Services Today

DUNCAN — Margaret Effie Gooding, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Chalmers Duncan, a pioneer family who founded the city of Duncan after moving there in 1860, died in Vancouver after a long illness.

Born at Duncan, she was 76 years of age. She was predeceased by her husband, Frederick, in 1900, also a sister, Mrs. W. A. (Maize) McAdam in January this year.

She is survived by two daughters, Miss Joyce Gooding, Duncan, and Mrs. David Garriock, North Vancouver, and four grandchildren.

Private funeral services will be held from the graveside of the family plot at St. Peter's Anglican churchyard at 4 p.m. today. The first funeral chapel at Duncan is in charge of arrangements.

PORT ALBERNI — Alberni Valley tourist bureau had a busy week, with 117 cars stopping and 29 persons telephoning for information.

ALBERNI — Eleven riders from this area spent Sunday and Monday in the saddle, riding a scenic trail over the Beaufort Range to Mud Bay on the east coast of Vancouver Island. They left Kalugin's farm at 9 a.m. Sunday and reached their destination by 3 p.m. the same day. They held a wiener roast, pitched their tents in a field near the Island Highway, and returned home in the rain Monday, wet but happy.

COURTENAY — A new administration building has recently been completed at the civic cemetery on Sandwick Hill. The former wooden maintenance shed will be removed soon.

COMOX — A tennis club was formed at a meeting in Comox, Thursday. Temporary officers are Mrs. P. Powers, chairman, and Mrs. G. A. Gibson, secretary. Dues will be $3 for children and $5 for adults. A new enclosed tennis area was completed recently and these facilities are expected to boost club membership. First plans include classes for youngsters from 10 to 16 years of age at the Anderson Park tennis courts.

NANAIMO — Two men pleaded guilty to careless driving and were fined $40 and had their drivers' licences suspended for 14 days when they appeared before Magistrate Lionel Beever-Potts Thursday.

Don Chow was charged following a rear-end collision at the Chase River underpass July 14. The same charge was laid against Lyle Patrick Burns of Wellington when the car he was driving struck a city street-sweeper July 11.

PARKSVILLE — A Parksville business recently changed ownership when Walter Thompson and sons Jerry and Don purchased the Shell garage from William MacDonald.

The business will now be known as Thompson & Sons Shell Service and will include Joe Green on the staff.

Radio Station Soon

DUNCAN — Officials of the new Duncan radio station CKAY have been informed by the department of transport that the federal cabinet has given the station the green light, and CKAY president Bob Jeffcott is confident his $30,000 station will be on the air early in September.

The upper floor of the Island Drug building at the corner of Craig and Station Streets is being converted into a modern radio studio.

Mr. Jeffcott said his company has recruited the best craftsmen here for the job. The studio will be completely air conditioned to protect the expensive electronic equipment.

"BEST SERVICE" — "The fact that we spared no costs in establishing this up-to-date station is an indication that we believe in this district's extensive progress during the next years, and we are prepared to give the best possible service to the public in the Chemainus and Cowichan Valleys and on the Gulf Islands," Mr. Jeffcott said.

Milino Construction is converting the downtown studio and Durak Construction is building the foundation for the two 135-foot transmitting towers and buildings on the Fairbridge farm, 2½ miles south of Duncan.

An Ontario firm, Leblanc & Royle, will erect the towers in about two weeks. The transmitters will be remotely controlled from the downtown studio.

Glengarry Inquiry Told:

Medical Help Demanded When Mother Was in Pain

A coroner's jury heard Thursday how a daughter found her mother when she went to visit her in a private hospital.

JIM FROST

Seen In Passing

Jim Frost operating a power mower. (An Oak Bay municipal employee, he is a truck driver in the maintenance department but mows all Uplands boulevards during the summer months. evidence at the inquest into the death of her mother, Mrs. Jessie Charlton Little, completed her evidence at the end of the third day of inquiry.

The inquest reconvenes today at 2 p.m. with one more witness to be heard.

MOVED

Mrs. Little, a patient at Glengarry Private Hospital, was moved to St. Joseph's Hospital Feb. 27, and died there the next day.

Mrs. MacLeod said she went to visit her mother and found her breathing labored, her face ashen and tears rolling down her cheeks. She was lying flat, and when Mrs. MacLeod lifted her head, her face contorted with pain. Mrs. MacLeod also saw bruises on her mother's arms and a swelling on her shoulder.

She was told a doctor had been called and would come after office hours, but Mrs. MacLeod said she insisted one be brought immediately.

BROKEN ARM

At St. Joseph's, Mrs. MacLeod said, it was some time, because of the pain, before her mother could be lifted onto a bed. The X-rays showed a dislocated, fractured arm.

She said she had not moved her mother, or rubbed her back that day at Glengarry.

Mrs. Phyllis Skelton, whose mother occupied a bed opposite Mrs. Little's, said she had been there but had not seen Mrs. MacLeod move Mrs. Little.

REFUSED DUTIES

Mrs. Frances Firbank, former employee at Glengarry, said that she was hired as a ward maid but was asked to do practical nurse duties and refused, but had fed Mrs. Little as a nurse's aid.

She said that, after working at St. Joseph's, she did not think "everything was all right" at Glengarry.

In earlier evidence it was stated that Mrs. Little's arm had dropped when she was on the stretcher and this could have contributed to the pain and shock, but ambulance attendant Peter Bourne said that at no time did Mrs. Little's arm fall. William Osland, administrator, said he was satisfied with the way the hospital was run. He said Mrs. MacLeod was not informed of her mother's accident because it was the hospital's policy to let doctors get in touch with next-of-kin. He denied Mrs. MacLeod was not informed because she might be critical of the handling of her mother.

Other evidence suggested there was no indication that Mrs. Little had pneumonia or that she was in pain.

Martin:

Medicare Cost Shocks Ottawa

By IAN STREET
Colonist Legislative Reporter

Health Minister Eric Martin on his return from medical-care talks in Ottawa Thursday predicted that first areas of expanded coverage would be for mental and TB patients.

But there are indications that even in these fields, forerunners of the proposed Canada-wide medicare scheme, there would be a delay of some 18 months. The minister said there was evidence at the conference that the federal government is shocked by the costs involved in the medicare proposal.

$52,000,000 ANNUALLY
Mr. Martin said the estimated cost to Ottawa of introducing a scheme for mental and TB patients alone is estimated at some $52,000,000 a year.

This week's conference of provincial health ministers, to be followed in a few months by another of provincial premiers with Prime Minister Pearson on medicare, was of a purely exploratory nature.

"No commitments were made by either side," said Mr. Martin. "This was a preliminary meeting designed to discuss our common problems. As such it was very successful."

Mr. Martin said all the provincial and federal authorities are naturally concerned with the cost of medicare.

SOON AS POSSIBLE

The minister stressed, however, that B.C. asked for implementation of the Hall royal commission recommendations on medicare as soon as possible. B.C. was able to take this stand immediately, he said, because this province is in "a better financial position" than any of the other provinces.

NO PROMISES

Health Minister Judy LaMarsh gave the conference no promises of medical coverage on a cost sharing basis between provincial and federal governments in the immediate future.

Mr. Martin said he felt that coverage for mental and TB patients would come first in the Canada-wide plan when the existing national health insurance scheme is broadened.

At the time of the hospital building plebiscite in 1959, an amount of $150,000 was included as the city of Nanaimo and hospital district's share of the cost of converting the old hospital into a chronic hospital. The balance of the total estimated cost of $300,000 included provincial and federal government grants of $75,000 each.

However, patient care concepts have changed so that the hospital board could only put a nursing home care program into the old hospital, as there are no grants for rehabilitative care available for the old building conversion. Because of this change and new government grant formulas the $75,000 federal grant is not now available.

Engineers have said that the cost of converting the old building to a nursing home operation is out of all proportion when compared with same amount of money invested in nursing home facilities adjacent to the new regional general hospital.

Engineers also pointed out that a major expense that would be incurred in the renovation of the old hospital would be the repair of numerous building deficiencies.

Gordon Frith, administrator of the new hospital, said "because the building is costing money to maintain in a dormant state, with its recently added burden of city taxes amounting to $5,054.95 per year, the hospital board finds itself forced to put the old hospital up for sale."

He said the higher a bridge to the island was built, the more expensive it would be and "the height of the bridge will depend on the department of transport and harbor commission."

MAY FIND MONEY
The alderman suggested that if the money for the bridge does not come from the recreation department it may be available in some other department.

He pointed out that the city still has an interest in the property because it is still paying for it. The city bought the island from the CPR in 1955 for $150,000 and turned it over free to the province in 1961.

The city still has $107,000 to pay over the next 12 years.

CLOSE TO FERRY
Ald. Greer said the province may find it worth while to invest in the bridge because if it was situated close to the B.C. government ferry terminal at Brechin Point, tourists unloading from the ferry would have direct access to the bridge and the island.

The mayor said the government may be interested in providing round trip tours by ferry from Vancouver to Newcastle Island similar to excursions held before the Second World War.

One-Way Street Confuses
PARKSVILLE — A new one-way street here has caused lots of confusion among local residents and visitors alike.

Village officials turned Craig Street into a one-way street from the Island Highway to Hirst Avenue, to reduce congestion near the post office and a newly-built, coin-operated laundry.

NO PARKING
Under new regulations, no parking is allowed on the east side of Craig Street and diagonal parking only on the west side.

A lot of confusion was noticed when the signs were put up but people are beginning to get used to their one-way street.

100 Ex-Students At School Reunion
LAKE COWICHAN — More than 100 persons attended a recent reunion for people who attended school here from 1930 to 1940.

Former students and their teachers reminisced about old times, renewed acquaintances and exchanged gifts. They attended beach parties, toured the district and attended a banquet at the Mesachie Lake hall.

The group also had its picture taken during the banquet, with all the adults lined up in a pose similar to those used for class pictures.

Original Owner Known
Nanaimo Dual-Murder Gun Traced to 1955 Auction
By LYNNE WALLER
NANAIMO—RCMP have the identity of the original owner of a rifle used in the slaying of John Leslie Brian Dixon and Dianne Phipps at Piper's Lagoon, near Nanaimo, Oct. 16, 1962, it was learned Thursday.

Members of a special squad investigating the murder said in Nanaimo Thursday the weapon was originally owned by Robert Ralph Dillabough, a former CNR station agent and telegrapher at Savona, B.C., who died on March 15, 1954. The rifle is a .22 calibre, model 63 Winchester semi-automatic, serial 41649A.

PUBLIC AUCTION
Mr. Dillabough's estate was handled by D. T. Rogers of a Kamloops law firm. Parts of the estate were sold and other assets, including the murder weapon, were advertised for sale at a public auction held in Kamloops Feb. 19, 1955 by auctioneer George Shelton who has since died.

The identity of the original owner of the weapon was established April 22, 1964, by the Dixon Phipps murder squad but in spite of extensive inquiries police have no conclusive information about what subsequently became of the rifle.

INFORMATION PLEA
Const. Dan Creely of the special detail, said they are assuming the murder weapon was sold at the auction.

In an official release from RCMP subdivision headquarters at Victoria, police reiterated their appeal to the public, "for any information which might result in solving this most heinous and apparently unmotivated crime, and particularly any information concerning the murder weapon. The police wish to impress upon the public that all information received will be treated in the strictest of confidence."

SAW OR BID
Police are interested particularly in interviewing persons who attended the auction in Kamloops and either saw the rifle on display, bid on it, or had any knowledge at all that it was for sale at a public auction.

Const. Creely said the rifle would have been in immaculate condition before the auction.

The bodies of Les Dixon and Dianne Phipps, both 19, were found Oct. 17, seven miles apart in the Nanaimo area.

BOTH SHOT
Dixon, found slumped over the wheel of his car parked at Piper's Lagoon, had been shot twice in the back of the head. The body of the girl was discovered partially hidden under abandoned car parts near Harwood Mines Road. She had been beaten with a rock and shot in the forehead.

Nanaimo Council Waiting
Details Sought On Bridge Cost
NANAIMO—Mayor Pete Maffeo announced at a city hall meeting Thursday council is waiting to receive a submission made to the B.C. recreation department by an unnamed engineering firm, providing information on estimated cost and location of a bridge to Newcastle Island.

The mayor said he had not yet received a reply to a letter requesting the information from Recreation Minister Kiernan. A similar study was made by a local engineering firm when Earle Westwood was minister of recreation and conservation.

The mayor and council made a partial inspection of the island while on an annual harbor tour several weeks ago.

Ald. Douglas Greer said "my impression was one of disappointment on the condition of the island. The house appears to be boarded up. There has not been much improvement in any of the facilities. The island is going back instead of being improved."

STILL A PROBLEM
Ald. Greer said the 18 campsites provided by the recreation department don't seem to be getting much use. "Tourists can get to the island by the ferry," he said, "but the problem is getting from the dock to the campsites."

He said the higher a bridge to the island was built, the more expensive it would be and "the height of the bridge will depend on the department of transport and harbor commission."

MAY FIND MONEY
The alderman suggested that if the money for the bridge does not come from the recreation department it may be available in some other department.

He pointed out that the city still has an interest in the property because it is still paying for it. The city bought the island from the CPR in 1955 for $150,000 and turned it over free to the province in 1961.

The city still has $107,000 to pay over the next 12 years.

CLOSE TO FERRY
Ald. Greer said the province may find it worth while to invest in the bridge because if it was situated close to the B.C. government ferry terminal at Brechin Point, tourists unloading from the ferry would have direct access to the bridge and the island.

The mayor said the government may be interested in providing round trip tours by ferry from Vancouver to Newcastle Island similar to excursions held before the Second World War.

One-Way Street Confuses
PARKSVILLE — A new one-way street here has caused lots of confusion among local residents and visitors alike.

Village officials turned Craig Street into a one-way street from the Island Highway to Hirst Avenue, to reduce congestion near the post office and a newly-built, coin-operated laundry.

NO PARKING
Under new regulations, no parking is allowed on the east side of Craig Street and diagonal parking only on the west side.

A lot of confusion was noticed when the signs were put up but people are beginning to get used to their one-way street.

SUSPECTS NABBED; HOSTAGE UNHURT

HUNTSVILLE, Ont. (UPI) — Ontario provincial police Thursday were holding two Connecticut men in connection with the abduction of a 21-year-old female bank teller and a daylight robbery in the Ottawa Valley town of Cobden.

They arrested Richard Bigelow and Douglas Olden, both from Connecticut, at the west end of Algonquin Park in the Muskoka area of the province.

$2,000,000 In Gems Monaco Loss

MONTE CARLO (UPI) — Five masked bandits firing machine guns and pistols raided a jewelry store near the Monte Carlo Casino Thursday and fled with jewels valued at about $2,000,000.

The robbers shot a policeman in the leg as they ran to escape in a pickup truck. Jewels worth about $100,000 were recovered in the vehicle when it was found abandoned on a side street later.

13 Nations Sanctions Likely For Cuba

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American foreign ministers conference appeared ready Thursday to slap diplomatic and trade sanctions on Cuba.

After intensive closed-door negotiations on the wording of a proposed resolution calling for sanctions, at least 13 countries, the required two-thirds majority of the 19 voting countries, were reported ready to vote for the Venezuelan - requested sanctions.

SANCTIONS OPPOSED
Mexico and Chile oppose the sanctions and the positions of Uruguay and Bolivia were uncertain. These countries still have diplomatic relations with Cuba.

The stand of Argentina, one of the largest of Latin American countries, also was uncertain. But it is believed Argentina will support the majority.

NOT EFFECTIVE
Argentina told the conference Thursday morning the proposed sanctions against Cuba "are not and will not be effective."

At the afternoon session the United States introduced three resolutions aimed at tightening the isolation of Cuba.

MUTUAL SURVEILLANCE
One resolution called for all members of the Organization of American States to:

"Co-operate in the establishment of systems of air, sea and land surveillance in the waters off their coasts and along their land boundaries in order to detect clandestine movements of persons and goods."

Hit-Run Car Kills Boy

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — David John Moore, 2½, was killed Thursday when struck by a car whose driver failed to stop.

The boy's mother, Mrs. John Moore, found her son lying on the road where he had been playing with friends in the Austin subdivision just north of this north central city. RCMP began a door-to-door canvass for witnesses to the mishap in an effort to get a description of the car involved.

The men put up no resistance when they were flagged down in their car by three Ontario provincial police constables.

Mrs. Ralph Millar, Cobden, Ont., was abducted during the robbery but was unharmed.

"They let me telephone my husband from a telephone booth in the park and told me I would be let go Friday."

The two men were expected to be transported to Pembroke later in the day.

THREATENED
Mrs. Millar, who is the mother of two young boys, said she was threatened several times, but unharmed.

She said she was grabbed by the arm and led from the bank when she refused to open the safe of the Bank of Nova Scotia branch shortly after lunch Thursday.

CAR DITCHED

The original getaway car, bearing Connecticut licence plates, was ditched on a farm a few miles west of Cobden. Mrs. Millar said they spent the afternoon hiding out in an old barn on the farm of John Holly.

When two policemen were spotted nearby, she said the bandits waited until they left, then forced Holly to turn over his car.

She said a knife was held at her throat and she was threatened with her life if she tried to summon police.

They drove west into Algonquin Park, she said, and midway through the car was stopped to permit her to telephone her husband.

HALTED BY POLICE

Mrs. Millar said it was only 20 minutes after the telephone call to her husband that provincial police halted the car at the west end of the park.

Const. Mel Inch waved the car down, and fellow Constables Frank Grell and William Edgar quickly moved in to make the arrest and seize the rifles.

During the robbery, bank accountant Miss Anne McWade was shot in the leg. She was reported in good condition from the wound.

Province to Get Its Bank 'One Way or Another'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Premier Bennett said Thursday night he is not trying to threaten Canada's Senate, but British Columbia is going to have a bank one way or another.

Returning from Ottawa where he testified before the Senate Banking Committee on application for a charter for a bank of British Columbia the premier told interviewers he is still confident that the bank will get a federal charter, despite the committee's action in postponing a decision.

GO IT ALONE
He said he based his confidence partly on a series of talks he had with MPs of various parties just before he left Ottawa.

But, the premier said, if for

some reason the Senate does not approve the charter, B.C. will go into the finance business one way or another. One way might be through establishment of treasury branches, such as those in Alberta. Another would be through trust companies.

This, he conceded, "would be second best and it will not be the complete answer to making B.C. a major financial centre of Canada. But it is a partial answer."

'CAN'T SIT BY'
"We cannot sit idly by and let the people of our province continue to be held back," the premier stressed that he was well-treated by the Senate committee.

"I am not finding fault with the Senate," he said.

Sad Day For Royalty

Laurentide Boss 'Surprised'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Peter Paul Saunders, president of Laurentide Finance Company, expressed surprise Thursday at a statement attributed to Premier Bennett that B.C. would go ahead with the Bank of British Columbia with or without parliamentary approval.

"I think he made a very good submission to Ottawa, but these things take time," he said.

"We've been there for several months—he only got there yesterday."

Card Belongs to Young Communist League Heart Belongs to Baptists

MOSCOW (UPI) — The religious yearnings of a 16-year-old girl in this atheistic nation drew special attention Thursday in a newspaper article entitled "The one who has gone astray."

Komsomolskaya Pravda, the newspaper of the Young Communist League, published a letter from Nina K., of the Ural city of Shelyabinsk, and added editorially that it was sure she was not lost to Communism.

"The fact is I don't believe in people," Nina K. wrote. "I am a Young Communist League member and I am 16. . . I am a normal girl but at the same time I'm unusual. I'm a member of a sect."

"Yes, I'm a Baptist! Strange, isn't it?"

Nina went on, "Frankly, I don't consider myself a member of the Young Communist League. I have a Komsomol card . . . but my soul belongs to God."

"I don't want faraway towns and construction sites . . . for what do I need the new lands?" (These are the accepted goals of good Young Communist Leaguers.)

"Father was a drunkard and mother was sick and all my brothers and sisters were crying all the time. My schoolmates looked on me with contempt and pity," Nina K. wrote.

"But here at church people met me with warmth and care. They wore black, members of this sect . . . but they have and now I have too a great and pure belief—the belief in God. He will protect us."

"Let Komsomol members members pass me without greeting. Let them look upon me with contempt. Let them say behind my back the word they regard as an insult—Baptist."

"Let them. I don't need them . . . now I am praying . . . God is almighty," Nina said. "My brothers and sisters in God treat me very well. I believe them. And I believe God. Before, I thought people invented God to oppress each other and now I think you shouldn't invent God because he already exists."

"The only thing I don't know is what to do with my Komsomol card . . ."

In an editor's note the Communist newspaper said, "the very fact she wrote a letter to our newspaper shows this 16-year-old girl deeply feels the uncertainty of her position."

Faint Hope Remains Posties Won't Strike

Gunfire Flares Along Border

TEL AVIV, Jerusalem (Reuters) — A new flare-up on the Syria-Israel border was reported Thursday night. An Israeli army spokesman said Syrian fortified positions opened automatic fire on the Israeli frontier village of Almazar, near the point where the Jordan River flows into the Sea of Galilee, and Israeli forces returned the fire.

LONDON (Reuters)—There was a glimmer of hope Thursday night that a country-wide strike by Britain's 123,000 postmen might be averted despite failure in last-minute attempts by the government to negotiate an agreement.

Further talks were scheduled today as the country's deliverers and sorters prepared to walk off their jobs at midnight Saturday night unless the government satisfies their wage demands.

Northern River

Two Huddle On Plane Eight Days

PRINCE RUPERT (CP)—Robert Gilroy and Max Portz faced certain death if they struck out in the glacier-fed waters of the Iskut River, so they huddled, drenched and bitterly cold, for eight days on the floats of their overturned Beaver aircraft.

In all that time they didn't have anything to eat and saw rescue aircraft fly past.

They told about it Thursday following their rescue. Gilroy spoke by telephone from Terrace, 95 miles inland from this north coast city and 200 miles south of the spot where their plane hit the river July 14.

TRIED FOR LANDING

The two prospectors were returning to their campsite at the junction of the Iskut and Inghini Rivers. They tried for a landing close to the site, trying to avoid the risk of taxing around snags.

"We hit a mud bank," Gilroy said.

FLOATED DOWNSTREAM

The plane floated downstream stopped upside down on a sand bar. Gilroy, 39, and Portz, 48, clambered onto the floats and there they remained through almost continuous rain for eight days.

WATER FRIGID

The Iskut, which flows through the Alaska Panhandle about 65 miles northwest of Stewart, was about three-quarters of a mile wide, its water close to 30 degrees.

"It would have meant death in two minutes if we had tried to strike out for shore," he said. "We counted as many as 14 planes flying over. That was the worst part of it."

CAMP DESERTED

A search was sparked Tuesday after Terrace pilot Doug Chappel flew supplies into their camp, found it deserted and noted the last entry in their diary was July 14.

They were spotted Wednesday, picked up and flown to Terrace by way of a mining camp and Stewart.

HAD GOOD SLEEP

"We were given lots of fruit juice and we both slept a long time," said Gilroy.

Neither lost much weight but Portz, a native of Rossland, caught a regular airlines flight Thursday for Vancouver for treatment of exposure. Gilroy, who is from Vancouver, said he will head north again as soon as he can.

Riots Go On

Wagner 'Too Late'

NEW YORK (AP) — White hecklers shouted epithets and threw eggs and garbage at a group of white and Negro pickets outside New York City's police headquarters Thursday.

But no new outbreaks of violence were reported in Harlem or the Bedford-Stuyvesant section of Brooklyn as darkness fell on the city, wracked on the five previous nights by wild racial violence.

Negro leaders Thursday rejected Mayor Robert F. Wagner's blueprint for peace, and one condemned the police for "reckless and panicky violence" in suppressing the riots which have left one dead, 140 hurt, 478 arrested and 673 properties damaged.

TARGETS NOT HIT

The 200 pickets at Manhattan's police headquarters, representing the Congress of Racial Equality, were protected from 300 white hecklers by police barriers.

Toll Mounting In Singapore

SINGAPORE (AP)—The death toll in Singapore's Chinese-Malay racial riots rose to 19 Thursday and reports spread that mobs were still on the prowl in some areas.

The toll in wounded was 300 or more in the strike that first erupted Tuesday night during a Moslem Malay procession in honor of the prophet Mohammed.

Singapore state Premier Lee Kuan Yew blamed the battling on Malay extremists. He said here that the savage fighting between the minority Malays and the Chinese could signal the start of serious trouble for the multi-racial Malaysian Federation.

TROOPS IN
About 7,000 steel-helmeted police and combat-garbed troops were posted on the island state to prevent fresh outbreaks of racial rioting.

Malays in Singapore were advised to pray at home on Friday, mosque day for Moslems, because of the emergency.

Police broke up two ugly mobs Thursday night and arrested 100 curfew breakers, but the situation appeared greatly improved.

There was no immediate word on the circumstances of the 19th death. The toll had been 18 on Thursday night.

The country's prime minister, Tunku Abdul Rahman, is in Washington. He plans to go to Ottawa Monday for three days. A communique issued in the U.S. capital Thursday night reaffirmed United States support for a free and independent Malaysia.

AID APPROVED
It said President Johnson had agreed to provide military training in the United States for Malaysian personnel and to consider promptly and sympathetically credit sales, under existing arrangements, of appropriate military equipment for the defence of Malaysia.

Border Guard Reaches Safety

EISENSTADT, Austria (Reuters)—A 21-year-old Hungarian border guard in full uniform escaped into Austria near Gussing, 45 miles south of here, police reported Thursday.
